HAPPY VALENTINE DAY GIVES AWAY GROCERIES

WOOTTON, England (AP) — A grocer named Valentine Day won $196,000—all tax free—in Britain's soccer pool today and promptly announced a free week's supply of groceries for all his customers.

Otherwise, he said, he'll continue business as usual.

Day, 54, explained.

"I have always promised my customers that if ever I won on the pool I would give them a week's supply."

"But this is not going to change my way of life. I shall be starting work at 6:30 tomorrow morning and opening up at the usual time."

"But I might treat myself to a holiday."

Day won the prize by correctly predicting tie games in last Saturday's British soccer games. There were only eight ties altogether—and he forecast all of them.

Two Charged In Bank Raid

Two men arrested Monday in Vancouver in connection with a $19,342 robbery of a branch of the Bank of Montreal here appeared in central court in Victoria today.

Charged with the Friday night armed robbery of the Richmond and Fort branch are William Braumberger, 45 and Henry Gable, 46.

Both are from Vancouver. They were arrested by city detectives Lorne Johnson and Jack Mason.

The city officers and members of Vancouver City police arrested the pair in Braumberger's home in the Grandview district of Vancouver.

Both suspects were remanded to March 1.

Gable asked a week-long remand to consider his election on the charge of armed robbery.

Braumberger had his election options explained three times before he chose trial by judge and jury.

Magistrate William Ostler remanded him to set a date for a preliminary hearing.

NO BAIL ASKED

Neither man asked bail be fixed.

Meanwhile, police have mounted a Canada-wide search for two others for whom warrants were issued Monday.

Police said the other men sought in connection with the holdup are Harold Robinson Coultrier, 47, and Gordon Francis Duck, 23.

Coultrier is described as five feet, five inches, 150 pounds and has dark hair.

Duck is five feet, nine inches, about 175 pounds and has brown hair, police said.

They are both from eastern Canada.

STATEMENTS

Both city Police Chief J. F. Gregory and Insp. William Andrews, who is in charge of the investigation, today issued statements praising city, Island and mainland police forces who assisted in the case.

The inspector, who has been in police work 25 years, said he had "never seen such co-operation like this in all my life."

"There was amazing esprit de

Korean Troops Sought

SEOUL (UPI) — Roving Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, winding up his nine-nation Asian tour, arrived here today, reportedly to work out an agreement for sending more Korean troops to Viet Nam. Korea already has 20,000 men fighting in the war.

Humphrey, accompanied by 14 aides and diplomatic trouble-shooter W. Averell Harriman, was met at Kimpoo International Airport by Korean Premier Chung Il-Kwon and other ranking government officials. American Ambassador Winthrop G. Brown was also on hand to greet the party.

According to reliable sources, Humphrey's visit was expected to bring about an "agreement in principle" on terms of a proposal to send more Korean troops to Viet Nam. Once agreement is reached, the sources said, details could be prepared through normal diplomatic channels in Seoul and Washington.

Viet Cong Stronghold Captured

SAIGON (Reuters) — United States troops for the first time today swept into a Viet Cong mountain stronghold in Central Highlands of South Viet Nam where guerrillas had held out for four days against air and ground bombardment.

As a massive onslaught from heavy B-52 bombers died away, men of the United States 1st Air Cavalry Division moved in on foot and by helicopter.

An American military spokesman today reported they met no opposition. They found 38 bodies, casualties of the bombardment.

For four days the Viet Cong defended their stronghold against the air cavalry push, despite losing hundreds of men, the spokesman said.

In coastal Binh Thuan Province 200 miles further south today the Viet Cong lost 56 dead in an attack on a government district headquarters, a South Vietnamese military spokesman reported.

Local militiamen fought off the attack, the spokesman said.

India Hunts Food

NEW DELHI (AP) — Food Minister Chidambaram Subramaniam indicated today negotiations are under way for India to buy food from five countries. He told Parliament Argentina may be able to sell India about 150,000 tons of wheat.

Police said "less than $100" was taken from the safe, fourth to be "cracked" in city in past two weeks, resulting in theft of about $1,500. Below, Harold Bohe, manager of B.C. Beauty and Barber Supply, 2012 Douglas, shows hole used by thieves to get to and from safe next door. Other premises entered through holes in adjoining walls were Fleck Bros., 2014 Douglas and Simpson Draperies, 2016 Douglas, where trail of holes stopped. ### India Rejects Bid For Viet Support

NEW DELHI (AP) — India's prime minister, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, disclosed in Parliament today that Vice-President Hubert Humphrey asked her government to support U.S. policy in Viet Nam, but she declined because of India's non-aligned position.

Mrs. Gandhi said she told Humphrey, who visited New Delhi last week, that India's view of the Viet Nam war is based on its position as a non-aligned country and as chairman of the International Control Commission for Viet Nam.

Canada and Poland are the other ICC members. Humphrey "appreciated" India's attitude and expressed the hope this country would "do everything possible to facilitate a peaceful solution of the problem," Mrs. Gandhi said.

Members of Parliament had asked if Humphrey's announcement of a new $100,000,000 loan to India was tied to any secret assurances from Mrs. Gandhi on India's foreign or domestic policy.

"We will not be forced into taking any position not consistent with our national interest," Mrs. Gandhi said.

He denounced the practice of sending children out to beg on church steps. In some orphanages children were forced to write begging letters accompanied by their names, photographs and biographical details he said.

He also chastized the insensitivity of orphanage directors and the "exhibitionist mania" of bereaved families who were not content with a simple funeral but wanted "processions of poor babies forced to recite dreary dirges which they did not understand."

Germano said a far more painful practice existed in parts of south Italy where orphans were hired to pray at night-long wakes over dead bodies.

New Plea By Wilson For Talks

MOSCOW (Reuters) — British Prime Minister Wilson appealed to Russian leaders today to help get Viet Nam talks started immediately and without preconditions.

"We ask you to talk with us so those concerned can sit round a table now, while there is time and without preconditions," he said at a Kremlin lunch.

Russia's top leaders, including Communist leader Leonid Brezhnev and Premier Kosygin, listened.

On nuclear weapons for West Germany, Wilson promised them:

"No government of which I am ever the head in our country will ever agree to a German finger being on the nuclear trigger."

Wilson spoke soon after a discussion of nearly two hours with Kosygin.

Informed sources said the meeting—their first since the British prime minister arrived here Monday for a four-day visit—showed no change in the Soviet position on Viet Nam.

In his luncheon speech, Wilson said he and Kosygin agreed the Viet Nam problem defied solution by military means.

"There must be a political solution in the interests of the people of Viet Nam... whose voice must be heard," he said, according to British officials.

The comment raised speculation whether Wilson was urging that the Viet Cong should be heard at an eventual peace conference.

SUGGESTS FRANK TALKS

Wilson pleaded for frank talk in strong language about differences between Britain and Russia.

"We have a duty to identify those issues where we do not agree and an even greater responsibility to try to identify those areas where we can agree."

He said that on the Viet Nam issue both sides agreed the war was tragic, and that every day it brought unnecessary suffering from people of a country "from whom peace has been a stranger for many years."

Both agreed there was great danger of the spread of war in Asia, particularly while the fighting continued to cast a cloud on East-West relations.

Wilson said the problem of nuclear non-proliferation was

No Sign Of Life Near Dory

HALIFAX (CP) — An overturned dory was sighted today about 10 miles northwest of the last known position of the Newfoundland trawler Blue Mist, the air-sea rescue centre here reported.

The trawler carried 13 men. An air force Neptune was sent to circle the boat until the fisheries department ship Cape Freels and the fishing trawler Grand Monarch could reach the scene.

No sign of life near the dory was reported from the air. The boat was found about 50 miles off Newfoundland's southwest coast.

Planes and ships were pushed into the search for the missing vessel today, but bitter cold, high seas and freezing spray led to fears that the ship might have met the same fate as another trawler, the Blue Wave, on Feb. 9, 1959. All 16 men aboard lost their lives when the Blue Wave iced and sank.

ST. KITTS, Leeward Isles (AP) — Bands playing calypso music and children shouting "welcome, dear one," greeted the Queen and Prince Philip when they arrived here today.

Canadian Jailed

DALLAS (AP) — Bruce G. Reid, 27-year-old Canadian, today was sentenced to six years in prison after pleading guilty Feb. 9 to possession of $57,465 in counterfeit U.S. currency.

Ministers Seized

KAMPALA (AP) — Prime Minister Milton Obote had five of his cabinet ministers arrested today and announced he had taken over "all the powers of the government of Uganda." "I shall henceforth be advised by a council whose members I shall name later," the prime minister announced.

Plane Crashes; 6 Die

NEW DELHI (UPI) — An Indian Air Force plane hit the airport control tower at Gauhati near Calcutta today and then crashed in flames into a row of shops. First reports said at least six persons were killed and a dozen injured.

40,000 Imperiled

FORMOSA, Argentina (UPI) — A state of emergency was proclaimed today in Formosa province, where mounting floodwaters fed by torrential rains imperiled more than 40,000 persons. The provincial government appealed to Buenos Aires for helicopters and emergency supplies of snakebite serum and tetanus antitoxin.

Nkrumah in Pakistan

KARACHI, Pakistan (UPI) — Ghana President Kwame Nkrumah arrived by plane from Cairo today to continue his personal investigation of possible ways to end the Viet Nam war.

Overseas Bases Also Cut Back

LONDON (UPI) — Britain announced today it will cut back the role of the navy's aircraft carriers and build its air forces around American F-4A supersonic bombers in a controversial decision that caused the resignation of both the civilian and military chiefs of the Royal Navy.

The fleet air arm—the navy's carrier-based force—will be phased out in the 1970s along with certain foreign bases in favor of land-based aircraft capable of rapid, long-distance operations.

The decision was announced by the Labor government in a special position paper on defence presented today in Parliament.

The white paper also said Britain regarded continuation of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization as vital to Europe's defence.

The paper said there will be no wholesale British retreats from global commitments despite the cut-back in defence expenditures.

But the decision, prompted by both strategic and monetary considerations, rocked the top echelons of the navy. The First Sea Lord, Admiral Sir David Luce, today joined his civilian chief, Navy Minister Christopher Mayhew, in announcing his resignation in protest to the action.

Mayhew quit on Saturday, saying the new defence budget was "dangerously mistaken."

defence facilities in an independent country against its wishes.

"In order to ease the strain from which our forces have suffered for so long and to improve the ratio of home to overseas service, it will be necessary to keep a higher proportion than now in the United Kingdom and to rely on quick reinforcement by air," the white paper said.

The white paper, soon to be followed by an expected bitter debate from Conservative opposition, said Britain will continue to urge the United Nations to assume a greater role in international peace-keeping.

Forces will be kept at the existing level in Germany "provided some means is found for meeting the foreign-exchange costs of these forces."

Chargers will be withdrawn from British Guiana and southern African territories shortly.

The government's plans put these three basic restrictions on military commitments outside Europe:

● Britain will "not undertake major operations of war except in co-operation with allies."

● No assistance to other countries unless they provide Britain with "the facilities we need to make such assistance effective in time."

● "No attempt to maintain

OTTAWA (CP) — Pierre Lamontagne testified today Raymond Denis indicated that he (Denis) was "going to get something out of" efforts to free narcotics smuggler Lucien Rivard on bail in 1964.

The 30-year-old Montreal lawyer also swore that Denis, a former aide to the federal immigration minister, told him there were four persons behind an offer of $20,000 if Mr. Lamontagne would drop opposition to bail for Rivard.

Mr. Lamontagne said he was able to learn only one of the names, that of a person referred to only as Gelin.

Crown Attorney John Cassels asked Mr. Lamontagne to clarify an earlier reply about someone other than Mr. Lamontagne being offered money.

ITALIAN JUDGE CONDEMNS PRACTICE

Orphans Hired for Funeral Prayers

TURIN, Italy (Reuters) — A judge made a bitter public protest today against the Italian habit of hiring children from orphanages to pray at funerals.

Emilio Germano, president of the Turin civil tribunal, said it was a painful spectacle which should be forbidden.

Writing in the influential daily newspaper La Stampa, the judge denounced as unjust and inhuman the spectacle of a double file of orphans, "long or short in relation to the wealth of the departed one, sent to follow funeral processions."

DIRECTORS CHASTIZED

He also chastized the insensitivity of orphanage directors and the "exhibitionist mania" of bereaved families who were not content with a simple funeral but wanted "processions of poor babies forced to recite dreary dirges which they did not understand."

Germano said a far more painful practice existed in parts of south Italy where orphans were hired to pray at night-long wakes over dead bodies.

Times News Service

LONDON — The London Daily Mirror, which is running a literary competition for children, Monday printed eight-year-old Veronica Simmonds' daydream on what she would do "if I were queen."

"I would get up at nine o'clock in the morning after breakfasting in bed," she wrote.

"I would dress in my long palace gown and put on my crown. I would then telephone the prime minister and ask him how England was getting on. I would give him my advice and orders."

"This would keep me busy until lunch time... lunch would consist mostly of fish and chips and bread and butter with tomato ketchup."

"After lunch I would sit on my throne and read my book on rabbits... when tea was over I would change my crown for a different one. I would set on my throne again and read until dinner time. I would have salad with garlic and red wine for dinner."

"Later I would get my servants to prepare my bed and to put in a hot water bottle. I would watch the television for a little while and then I would go to bed after the palace chaplain had said prayers."

PARIS — Two women seamstresses gave themselves up to police here because their two male partners made them work too hard and gave them too little of the proceeds.

MONTEAUBAN, France — A man was jailed here for three months for stealing a cassack, curate's hat and incense vessel. He said he wanted to say private mass for the return of his wife, who had left him.

LONDON — Thousands of Canadian war veterans, now perhaps a bit thick in the middle and thin on top, dream occasionally of an English pub where they whooped it up as dashing young soldiers.

Two Torontoites, Keith McCord, 45, and David Shiriff, 43, took the dream one step further — they came back and bought the pub.

Today they are engaged in making plans for the future of the pub, the 13th century Crown Inn at Chiddingfold, Surrey, which will continue to operate under a resident manager.

Once a rest house for pilgrims on their way to Canterbury, the Crown was advertised for sale in a British magazine last September, catching the eye of McCord and Shiriff, who were tank captains in the Ontario Regiment during their wartime visits.

NEW DELHI, India — A New Delhi man complained that it took six weeks for a telegram he had sent to Secunderabad to be delivered. An investigation was ordered. It disclosed that the delay was caused by a telegraph agency investigation to determine if it had an office in Secunderabad.

MOSCOW — Soviet cosmonauts have been carrying a "fear meter," the magazine Ogoniok reported Sunday. The instrument, the weekly magazine said, determines "the psychic state of a man to a certain degree, and registers the slightest nervousness or lack of confidence."

The fear meter, so called by the cosmonauts themselves, was first tried out on Andrian Nikolayev and Pavel Popovich in 1962. It showed both of them nervous before the launching, but with the nervousness disappearing once they were up and experiencing weightlessness.

Collision Rumored Air Disaster Cause

FRANKFURT (AP) — The influential West German newspaper Frankfurter Allgemeine says in an editorial that authorities and international airlines are hushing up the possible role of an Italian jet fighter in the Jan. 24 crash of an Indian airliner on Mont Blanc, which claimed 117 lives.

Geneva airport authorities denied any Italian plane was involved.

Under the heading A Veil of Secrecy, the newspaper says that "apparently there is a solidarity between the airlines not to mention that the disaster could result from a collision with an Italian jet fighter."

"Why have not official authorities announced yet that since the same minute that the Boeing 707 of Air India disappeared from the Ceneva radar screens an Italian jet fighter is missing in the same area? Who has an interest in hushing up such evidence?"

The newspaper says a pre-crash collision between the Italian jet and the Indian airliner was "most probable."

It says officials of several airlines in Frankfurt and London have insisted that a collision caused the crash.

In Geneva, airport authorities said the collision report was completely untrue. It said no Italian or other plane was missing that day. They said an Italian military plane was in the area at the time of the crash, but was not involved since it gave the first report of the crash site.

'Phoney Vote Issue Sought by Bennett'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Liberal leader Ray Perrault charged Monday that Premier Bennett is making a deliberate attempt to create a phoney election issue.

"This is the third and I'm sure, the last session of the 27th legislature," he told a crowd of about 75 at a meeting of the Vancouver Quadra Liberal Association.

"The premier is seeking desperately to create an election issue," he said.

Perrault said later he thinks Mr. Bennett may use redistribution as a key issue in the campaign. The premier might charge the opposition with attempting to thwart development of the northern part of the province by fighting the government's redistribution plans.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Overnight temperatures in B.C. ranged from 12 above at Kimberley under clear skies to 56 at Toronto the result of overcast conditions and brisk southeasterly winds. Early morning readings were in the low 40s in the Cariboo and the low 50s along the north coast. The mild weather continued today as another weather disturbance approaches the province from the southwest. Rain is expected in coastal regions from this system but only a few showers are forecast for the northern interior as it crosses that area tonight. Increasing cloud will mark the passage of this system over the Kootenays Wednesday.

Deputy Chief Appointed For Police

Promotion of Insp. Ray Maitland to deputy chief of the Victoria police department was announced Monday.

He will fill the vacancy to be caused by the retirement Feb. 28 of Harry Mercer, who served an extra year over the normal span of service.

Announcement was made following the closed part of the regular police commission meeting.

Two new inspectors were appointed. Det. Richard Berry steps up effective March 1 and Det. L. J. Clark on April 1.

Raised to sergeant were acting sergeant John Rickerby, Const. Al Harwood and Const. A. M. Bell.

New acting sergeants are constables Lorne Shandley, Fred Acreman and Gordon Bennett.

Other promotions included: Constables F. N. Beard, M. J. Poulton, R. C. Madison, D. E. Milton and B. H. Green to be second-class constables.

Constable K. D. Didden to be third-class constable; Constables James MacDonald, D. G. Sleivert and George Leukefeld to be probationers second grade.

Also at Monday's police commission meeting two constables were demoted for disciplinary reasons. They were not named.

Chief J. F. Gregory said one was a junior officer who became involved with a number of civilians while off-duty. He was demoted from first-class constable to second class.

The other man, with 20 years' experience on the force, was demoted from first-class to third-class constable. He was charged with a disciplinary offence while on duty.

No further details were given. Resignation of Const. D. E. Sepka was accepted with regret. He is leaving to take up a position in industry in Vancouver.

Public Debate On Insurance Invited Here

Private insurance agents here have been asked to name two spokesmen for a public panel discussion next Monday.

The invitation was sent by the Victoria New Democratic Party to Justin Harbord, president of the Insurance Agents Association of B.C.

Mr. Harbord, sharply critical last month of calls for government car insurance, is out of town on business but will be back later this week.

The local NDP wants to see two private insurance spokesmen debate the controversial issue against NDP MLA William Hartley, a co-op insurance representative, and E. P. O'Neil, secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labour.

The panel meeting will be at 8 p.m. in the Union Centre auditorium on Quadra.

"Raymond indicated to me that he himself was going to get something out of it though he didn't indicate amounts," Mr. Lamontagne said.

He had earlier said that at one stage of a July 14 meeting with Denis no one else had been mentioned as a recipient of money. This had been suggested at a later stage.

REFUSED OFFER

Mr. Lamontagne testified that he refused immediately when Denis informed him of the $20,000 offer in the Rivard bail affair.

He said that during his conversation with Denis he was trying to learn "out of curiosity" who was behind the offer.

"He told me four persons were involved but I got only one name—Gellinas."

Mr. Lamontagne said Denis, at that time executive assistant to then immigration minister Rene Tremblay, told him of the offer in Mr. Tremblay's office shortly after the minister had left the room.

"He said that I was being offered $20,000 to withdraw objection to Rivard's getting out on bail," Mr. Lamontagne said.

Mr. Lamontagne was lawyer for the United States government which was trying to extradite Rivard to the United States for trial.

Denis, 33-year-old lawyer, is being tried before county court Judge Frank Costello on a charge of corruptly offering the sum of money to Mr. Lamontagne to have him stop opposition to bail for Rivard.

not just a problem of Germany. "In this year of 1966 I believe we could be near the point of no return," he said.

There were countries in the Middle East, Asia and elsewhere who might feel it necessary to acquire nuclear weapons, he said, and if that happened, the spread of nuclear arms would begin to get too big to control.

When he arrived Monday Wilson described his talks with Kozynin as a search for East-West "points of contact."

BUT HELLYER ADMITS RETIREMENT PLAN ERROR

Defence Lapses Blamed on Dief

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Defence Minister Paul Hellyer Monday night accused the Conservative of creating dark days in Canadian military morale.

He waded in after taking it on the chin for more than two days from critics and triggered the noisiest encounter of the Commons' campaign so far.

Hellyer clashed with Gordon Churchill, his immediate predecessor in the defence job.

The Winnipeg-South member occupied the post in the last days of the John Diefenbaker government.

Hellyer argued it was nonsense to say that today there was low morale in the forces brought on by integration.

DARK DAYS

The "dark days" were in the early 60's, Hellyer contended. He said the nuclear hassle and the wrangling and wheel-dealing in the Tory cabinet "made Canada the laughing stock of NATO."

Hellyer said he had inherited a mess built up from Tory years of apathy and ministerial rubber-stamping.

The minister said there had been much criticism about second-hand, questionable equipment in the forces.

He said he wanted to point out to the opposition that he had not bought nuclear-bombing Starfighters; Honest John rockets, Bomarc missiles or Voodoo anti-bomber interceptors.

YEARS OF APATHY

"In fact, I inherited the whole conglomerate mess that had built up through years of apathy; through years of ministerial 'rubber-stamping'; through years of 'lip-service' to civilian control; through years of failure to analyze what a country like Canada really needs in the field of defence," Hellyer stated.

Churchill replied that the House had just heard the "most bombastic speech by a minister of national defence ever uttered in this chamber, I think since the days of Sir Sam Hughes (in the First World War era.)"

"You will remember that," countered Hellyer.

Churchill maintained recent criticism had shaken Hellyer from smug complacency.

GREAT POORHAI

He also referred to him as "this great poobah."

Supporters on either side of the House sniped at each other during the debate and there were frequent calls for order.

The estimates — for 1965-66 — failed to get through the first vote after 2½ days of debate.

Churchill said it was partly because Hellyer had chosen to make a 45-minute speech. They may get through today.

Hellyer replied to earlier opposition attacks in his speech. The minister defended his statement that the navy's anti-submarine capability is the greatest in peacetime history.

He said the critics' challenge was based on the suggestion that because the fleet is smaller it is less effective.

He said in 1964-65 he was able to reduce expenditures to $1.52 billion, and the 1965-66 estimate was $1.55 billion.

"This is a total saving in two years from 1963-64 level of $143.7 million," Hellyer stated.

SALARY HIKES

"This has been achieved notwithstanding civil and military salary increases costing at least $80 million during these two years, and increased cost of equipment due to rising prices," he added.

Hellyer also pointed out that the percentage of the defence spending in the overall budget had decreased from 24.08 per cent in 1954, to 18 per cent for 1966-67.

The minister said there had been criticism about the early retirement of 500 aircrew in 1964, a surplus having built up from the 1961 Berlin crisis.

He said a recommendation was made for release of 500 subject to special benefits being available.

Hellyer said 284 were pilots, 89 of whom were short-service and coming to contract end; of the other 195, 31 were overage and the other 164 were within two years of retirement due to age.

But Hellyer admitted that there was no way at that time to force a shortage of pilots in civilian flying. (Air lines are making attractive offers to RCAF fliers.)

WRONG MOVE

Hellyer said in retrospect he would not make the same decision again, but he said as of last December the RCAF had 2,325 pilots and the current establishment is for 1,720.

He said recruiting in 1965 was only down about five per cent from the year before — despite the appeals of industry in a booming economy.

Hellyer admitted there is a shortage of skilled personnel in some areas.

But he said so far as the navy is concerned, this results in part from better working conditions requiring more men.

And he again defended the government's choice of the CF-5 fighter for the RCAF's tactical ground support role of the future.

VIET NAM STAND

Taylor Defends Kennedy's Call

... personal view

NEW YORK (AP)—Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor describes Senator Robert F. Kennedy's call for a post-election Communist role in a coalition South Vietnamese government as "very, very close" to his own view, the New York Herald Tribune says.

The newspaper says Taylor, one of President Johnson's key advisers on Viet Nam, told The Herald Tribune Monday that the New York senator's "purpose is quite consistent with what many of our people have been saying and with what (Secretary of State) Rusk has been saying" on reaching a negotiated settlement to the war.

But Taylor, a former U.S. ambassador in Saigon, stressed his opposition to a coalition government with Communist participation before a free election is held.

Until Taylor, a long-time personal friend of Kennedy, spoke out, the brother of the late president appeared headed for a direct policy clash with Johnson over Viet Nam. Any such showdown would hold far-reaching political implications for both men.

The state department declined to comment on Taylor's defence of Kennedy's statement.

The New York Democrat had said the Viet Cong must receive "a share of the power and responsibility" under a new coalition government if peace talks are to succeed. He urged that the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong, be seated in any future negotiations "as an independent entity."

Former JFK Aide Agrees

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Historian Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., says he agrees with Senator Robert F. Kennedy (Dem. N.Y.) that the Viet Cong be allowed representation in the government of South Viet Nam.

Schlesinger, author of A Thousand Days, a history of the administration of President John F. Kennedy, said in a lecture Monday night he opposed both complete withdrawal from South Viet Nam or forcing a war with China. Schlesinger was a presidential aide to the late president.

Prior to the speech, in Dallas, Schlesinger said Senator Kennedy was "a better interpreter" of the late President Kennedy's foreign policy than was State Secretary Dean Rusk.

"I think Senator Kennedy was right Saturday," Schlesinger said here, "in his proposal that the Viet Cong gain some degree of representation in the South Viet Nam government."

"In 1961, Laos was in trouble. After consideration, President Kennedy decided to abandon Laos as a bastion of the West and try to neutralize it... the effect was that the neutralists joined with the pro-Americans and Laos did not fall under Communist domination."

STOCKS

Marchand Seeking Gains Tax

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration Minister Marchand said Monday night he favors imposition of a capital gains tax.

Mr. Marchand, former Quebec labor leader who was first elected to Parliament on Nov. 8, made the statement in an interview on the Pierre Berton show, shown on a number of private Canadian stations.

He said although he favors such a tax, this does not mean his cabinet colleagues agree.

In Canada, a person whose stock increases in value over a period of time pays no tax when he sells. Under a capital gains tax the difference in the purchase and selling prices would be taxed at the time of sale.

Mr. Marchand, termed one of the "three wise men" from Quebec during the election campaign, talked during the interview about the entry of himself and two cohorts into federal politics.

He said he ran for office after certain conditions were accepted. He wanted journalist Gerard Pelletier (Montreal-Hochelaga) and lawyer-professor Pierre Elliott Trudeau (Montreal Mount Royal) with him in the Liberal party and "I wanted the party to get rid of a few members."

Guy Rouleau, former parliamentary secretary to the prime minister, and Yvon Dupuis, former minister — without portfolio, were in the group he wanted out.

tence imposed on him Monday night by a military court.

Njono, 43, accused of treason against the state, was found guilty of waging war and armed rebellion aimed at overthrowing the government.

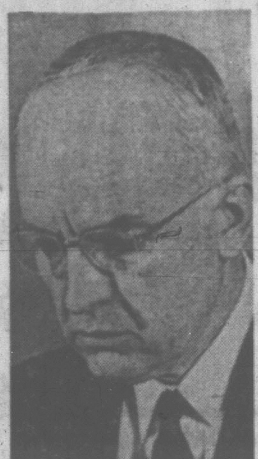

Observers at the trial said Njono, calm when sentenced, told the court he will appeal to President Sukarno.

Njono was arrested Oct. 2, the day after last year's abortive coup attempt, and was accused by the army of being one of the plot leaders.

Foreign correspondents were barred from the trial, which began eight days ago in the heavily-guarded hall of the national planning board.

Military investigators took four months to collect evidence against Njono, ranked seventh in the Communist party's (PKI) politburo.

The judge said Njono committed three main crimes: criminal offence, criminal with political aspect and treason, and moral crime against the state philosophy.

... crash killed 43

'727 Failed To Respond' Says Pilot

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The pilot of a Boeing 727 said Monday the airliner failed to respond when he gunned the jet engines and pulled back on the controls to avert a hard landing that resulted in a fiery crash killing 43 passengers last November.

Capt. G. C. Kahmeier, 48, of United Air Lines, said the lack of response indicated the plane was nearly in a stall. A stall is when a plane loses its lift and is unable to be controlled due to speed and angle of flight. Co-pilot Phillip E. Spicer, who was at the controls when the 727 began its landing approach, said he started to increase engine power earlier but was told by Kahmeier to wait awhile.

The 727 hit hard, short of the runway, and burst into flames. Fifty of the 91 aboard got out, but two died later. Forty-one were burned to death or suffocated on the spot.

This was the only one of four fatal crashes of 727s since last August, where the men at the controls survived to say what happened. The four crashes killed 254 persons.

FLU KILLS SIX IN CALIFORNIA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The deaths of three elderly women in Long Beach, Calif., of influenza brings the state's toll to six dead in the spreading epidemic that has closed many schools and closed business.

The Long Beach city health officer, Dr. I. D. Litwack, said Monday that the three women, ages 91, 71, and 70, all died of ailments related to the influenza epidemic.

Officials also reported that most public schools in Contra Costa, Santa Clara and Alameda counties were closed.

Health officers predicted that close to 4,000,000 persons will have been stricken by the flu before the epidemic ends, adding:

"There is no evidence that the epidemic has peaked."

Lesage's Gentle Reminder To the Quebec 'Minority'

QUEBEC CITY — Quebec has its minority too. But Quebec's is not a minority like the others.

Although 80 per cent of Quebec's population is French-speaking, the English-speaking have enjoyed many of the benefits of a majority.

McDowell

English has a place in Quebec far out of proportion with the number of English-speaking people, although perhaps not out of proportion with their economic strength.

Everyone in Quebec knows that this has to change.

If French-Canadians are not to go on forever in what English-speaking Montrealers call "the position of first-generation immigrants," French must become the dominant language in the province in business and industry, as well as in politics where it already prevails.

How this change is to come about is a much-debated question. Official bilingualism has been proposed and short of that, some sort of legal support of priority for French.

Until last week, Premier Jean Lesage had kept pretty well clear of the subject, except for occasionally tossing off a remark like, "How do you expect to make a cosmopolitan city like Montreal unilingual?"

But this week, in the most mild and gentle of speeches, Mr. Lesage reminded the minority that the French-speaking in Quebec were the majority.

By STAN MCDOWELL

racial intolerance. Yet nothing of the sort has happened."

But with that said, Mr. Lesage also had this to say: "While the French-speaking people are obviously — and I might even say naturally — providing the social driving force in Quebec today, it does not follow that the other ethnic groups should stand aloof from the movement they are witnessing, let alone fight against it. On the contrary, they should support it."

"We are trying to take our rightful place in Canada; we are also moving into the future, calling upon all our energy and transforming Quebec in the process."

"The Quebec of tomorrow will not be a closed society, drawn in upon itself, nor will it be limited in its outlook. There will be plenty of room for all those who, although not necessarily members of the French-speaking community, are willing to understand, support and co-operate with that community."

"That room is available now; in the months and years to come, all non-French-speaking Quebecers will be given ample opportunity to occupy it. The spirit of understanding which most of them are showing today makes me confident that they will join us to help reach the one major objective which contains all the others: the building in Quebec of a new society inspired by a profoundly democratic spirit and based on a deep respect for the human being."

Elsewhere in the speech Mr. Lesage said that French-speaking Canadians "expect their motivation to be understood and not to be opposed for the sole purpose of stubbornly hanging on to acquired privileges no longer justified."

It was all left and tactful. But it made some points.

The French-speaking community is the vital force of the new Quebec.

There will be room in the Quebec of the future for those non-members of the French-speaking community who support their justification.

Mr. Lesage did not directly say anything about giving some form of support or priority to the French language in Quebec.

But what Mr. Lesage often says at a press conference, when a question arises on which he is not yet ready to make a firm pronouncement, is "You can draw your own conclusions."

Oxford's Colleges Under Fierce Attack

By KARL E. MEYER

LONDON — A world-famous Oxford College has been sternly arraigned in an article appearing in Encounter magazine for floundering "like a golden whale in the shallows of reform."

Entitled "Crisis at All Souls," the article reads like a chapter from a C. P. Snow novel and is the latest in a series of attacks that seem to prefigure wholesale change in Oxford's medieval ways.

The author is David Cauter, 29, who recently resigned his All Souls fellowship in protest, the first such gesture, it is said, since 1453. A novelist and historian of French Communism, Cauter is due to teach at New York University next fall.

Scandalized

Some at Oxford are scandalized by Cauter's disclosure of the intimate financial arrangements of the university's only college without students. "For more than 10 years," Cauter asserts, "All Souls has refused or failed to spend its enormous revenues."

In 1963, this surplus amounted to $106,400 according to Cauter, who had advocated that the college agree to take in graduate students, a proposal that was ultimately rejected in favor of a plan to provide for visiting fellows.

Cauter's version of events, and his assessment of their importance, is "subject to dispute among Oxonians. But few deny that Oxford as a whole is under an increasingly heavy barrage of criticism from within and without."

In 1963, the influential Robbins Report on Higher Education alluded unhappily to the "general obscurity" of the financial and administrative arrangements at both Oxford and Cambridge, which were deemed "incompatible" with their dependence on public funds.

A year later, Oxford itself responded to the criticism by setting up a commission to restudy the entire structure of a university in which some two score colleges remain jealously independent.

The commission is headed by Lord Franks, provost of Worcester College and former British ambassador to the United States. The report is expected to be released this spring, probably around Easter.

For two years, the Franks commission has been conducting hearings notable for the fiercely self-critical spirit evidenced in testimony.

Prof. C. D. Darlington, for example, found it inherent in the Oxford college system to "balk change, to favor stability and to tolerate stagnation." A Magdalen College botanist, Darlington said the colleges were "a farce and a fraud" as a means of graduate research.

Even so, testimony like this failed to reassure angry undergraduates. Oxford Opinion, a student magazine, said of Lord Franks:

Human Nature

"He is fighting against human nature in wanting the rich colleges to subsidize the poor, lecturers to entertain their listeners rather than themselves, tutors to spend more time on their pupils and less on lucrative sidelines."

"The real trouble is that the younger members of the university are reluctant to spoil the leisurely existence that awaits them."

The two most frequently voiced complaints — obscurity about financial arrangements and slowness in reaching decisions — are major points in Cauter's indictment of All Souls.

SMITH VERSUS SMITH

By COLIN LEGUM

LONDON — Two Rhodesian editors have set the rebel prime minister, Mr. Ian Smith, one of the most difficult decisions he has had to make since he illegally declared Rhodesia independent just over three months ago.

Mr. Ian Smith must now decide whether to prosecute Mr. Malcolm Smith, editor of the Rhodesian Herald, and Mr. Sidney Swadell, editor of the Bulawayo Chronicle, for refusing to obey his censorship laws. These laws require them, inter alia, to leave no blank spaces in their newspapers to show where the censor has been at work.

Up to now the editors had observed the instructions of the censor because he had operated under the authority of Emergency Regulations legally applied by governor Sir Humphrey Gibbs before Rhodesia was taken into illegal independence.

State Ended

But the legal State of Emergency ended last week. The new regulations passed by Mr. Smith's rebel regime do not have the governor's authority. Therefore the editors are defying the authority of the rebel regime.

If action is taken against them the editors will at once apply to the courts for redress. And that is the kernel of Mr. Ian Smith's dilemma.

He can be fairly sure that Rhodesia's nine high court judges, presided over by Sir Hugh Beadle, will operate the law as loyal subjects of the British Crown to whom they owe their allegiance. The law of the Crown is the 1961 Constitution which was abrogated by the Smith rebellion and replaced by the rebels' 1965 Constitution.

This, then, is Mr. Ian Smith's dilemma. If he now orders legal action to be taken against Malcolm Smith and Sidney Swadell he precipitates the long-threatened clash between the courts and the regime.

Paradox of the Moscow Authors' Trial: It May Advance Soviet Liberalization

By VICTOR ZORZA
The Manchester Guardian

LONDON — The trial of Russian authors Andrei Sinyavsky and Yuli Daniel in Moscow will in the wholeness of time prove to have been a notable advance in the liberalization of the Soviet union, paradoxical as that may be.

There can be no doubt that the protests by many western Communist parties must have greatly upset the Soviet leaders. The first Soviet reactions to the protests have sought to minimize them, but western Communists know that their persistence has been rewarded by success in the past, and they may be expected to go on pressing for justice in this case too.

Western Reds Protested Book

Protests by western Communist parties against the publication of a crudely anti-semitic book in the Ukraine were also at first minimized in the Soviet press. But in the end the book was withdrawn, and this proved to be the beginning of a slow but firm development away from official anti-semitism in Russia in the past year or so. One reason why this pressure against Soviet anti-semitism proved so successful was the personal engagement of many Jewish Communists in the West in the campaign to bring the Kremlin to its senses.

Kremlin Can't Ignore Group

One reason why the Communist parties in the West are now up in arms about the Moscow verdict against Sinyavsky and Yuli is to be found in their fear that their own standing will be adversely affected thereby and that such sympathizers as they might have hoped to recruit, especially among the intellectuals, will be repelled. The Kremlin cannot really ignore the group of Communist leaders in the West, especially at a time when it needs their good will in fighting off the Chinese political menace in the East. It will therefore have to make some concessions to their views by allowing the ferocity of the sentences to be moderated.

But, as in the case of the anti-semitic book, the main effects will show itself in the longer term. If the Soviet leaders have to give way to protests this time, they will try to avoid a similar predicament in the future, and that can only be done in two ways. Either they return to the Stalinist practice of completely secret trials — which, in present circumstances, could not remain secret for long, and would in the end cause them even greater political difficulty — or they allow the rule of the law slowly to assert itself, so that in the end any supposed transgressors against it can be tried in full view of the world, and so that, as western Communists are demanding even now, justice can be seen to be done.

Rule of Law Leaders Aided

In this way the trial will have proved to be of great help to the many Soviet leaders who have been pressing in recent years for the establishment of the rule of law. They have had some notable successes, but what they needed above all was some dramatic case that would prove to the powers that be that the reformers were right, and the conservatives wrong.

Only last month the government paper Izvestia printed an article about the work of Soviet courts which condemned in virtually every paragraph the methods that were to be used shortly in the trial of Sinyavsky and Daniel on charges of publishing anti-Soviet literature outside Russia. Its homily was pegged to the case of a family whose house, not far from Moscow, had been confiscated by a local court on the grounds that it had been built out of unearned income — although the defendants had documents to prove that they had earned the money.

"You have to take into account the time when the case was tried," the state prosecutor who handled it explained to the Izvestia correspondent. "Why, don't you remember what things were like then?"

Drive Against Black Market

He was not referring to the "era of illegality" under Stalin, as it is sometimes called in the Soviet press, but to a much more recent campaign against alleged "speculators" who were supposed to have made money out of the black market.

A decree was issued under which houses acquired from "unearned income" could be confiscated, but this, recalls the Izvestia correspondent, was regarded by certain people as imposing on them a duty to suspect everybody. In the case he describes, "it was necessary to find that the house had been built out of unearned income," and the local authority had therefore determined that it cost twice as much to build as the owners claimed — and the owners were unable to show where they had acquired so much money.

'Illegality' Not Made Legal

But the decree, Izvestia now comments, "Never" made illegality legal. The illegality was perpetrated "independently," it says, by those who allowed themselves to be swept off their feet by the raging passions of the campaign against speculators. What Izvestia does not say is that its own columns, together with those of the other newspapers, were the main instruments of that campaign — just as much in the past week or two they led the campaign against the two writers.

Izvestia now ascribes the illegal prosecution of house owners to the "faceless pressure" exerted on the court by something that masqueraded as public opinion, but all its readers will know that both the decree and the campaign against the house owners had originated in the highest party quarters, as did the instructions to the court, and to the press, on the handling of the Sinyavsky-Daniel trial. (The trial concluded last week with Sinyavsky and Daniel both receiving sentences to imprisonment at hard labor.)

In what is probably the most outspoken condemnation of the illegality implicit in such "legal" proceedings to appear in the Soviet press, Izvestia traces it to its source:

'Public Opinion' And the Judge

"This is the pressure of the surrounding atmosphere, which expresses itself in many ways, noticeably and at the same time intangibly, creating around the judge and in his public life an atmosphere that tries to influence masterfully the outcome of his work on a particular case or a number of cases, under the guise of 'public opinion,' the judge is made to listen to the voice of 'public passions.' To follow this voice in a court case is always dangerous and often unworthy. A judge should stand above this in carrying out his lofty task, which is based not on temporary and transient impressions, but on the eternal and immutable principles of justice."

It matters little that this was not Izvestia's own comment, but the view of a Russian lawyer who before the revolution was fighting against harassed officials to establish the independence of the judiciary, for Izvestia's own article was a blow in the same case though against a different set of officials. The very fact of the expression of such views in the Soviet press, unthinkable only a few years ago, means that the struggle is already half won.

PREMIER LESAGE
... 'rightful place'?

The speech was, first of all, one of reassurance.

It was given before a Jewish audience, the brotherhood of Temple Emanuel, at Montreal.

Some members of Montreal's large Jewish community have been made uneasy by the virulent form that nationalism has taken among a few small groups of extremists.

Mr. Lesage assured his audience that the deep and powerful movement in Quebec today "is not directed against anyone. It comes from the firm determination of French-speaking Canadians to take their rightful place, but it has no racial overtones whatsoever."

"This, actually, has surprised more than one foreign observer who would normally have expected that, in becoming self-reliant, our people, most of whom are French-speaking, might have easily slipped into religious or

The Journalist MPs Suffer Divided Loyalties

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA — Any newsman who plies his trade in the precincts of Parliament eventually becomes aware that a good many of the MPs he is writing about are doing the same thing themselves.

They tend to be more gentle, forbearing, sympathetic and complimentary in their comments than the professional chronicler of their doings and misdoings.

Their moonlighting in journalism usually takes the form of a column, with photo and byline, in their local Weekly Bugle & Echo. It will be headed "Report from Parliament Hill," or "Your MP reports," or some similarly catchy title that the MP's wife thought up.

It pays little if any money, but at $18,000 a year out of the public purse plus an easy tax ride and other perquisites they hardly need union scale. Enough that they're getting their picture and opinions regularly before the voters back home, and storing up good will with the editor, who just loves live material he doesn't have to pay for.

You've seen those promotional giveaways for "three box tops or reasonable facsimile thereof." Well, with all real power in Parliament concentrated in the hands of the cabinet, and with back bench MPs having little more than a residual right to advise and warn, a backbencher's solid parliamentary achievements are rarely worth much space in the newspapers.

However, with a weekly signed column in the Bugle & Echo he can provide the home folks with a "reasonable facsimile thereof."

Now, I'm not saying an MP shouldn't do this. Weekly newspaper editors leave national news pretty much to the dailies, and weekly readers are likely to be less well informed on national affairs than city folks. If the MP's column is honestly written, it fills a void. But equally importantly, the chore of writing a regular column requires mental effort. It makes the writer think out the matters with which he's dealing. And this will make him a better MP.

Occasionally a writer of professional competence emerges from the ranks of these journalistic amateurs, and finds a whole new profession opening to him.

One such declined to stand for re-election last fall, and instead became a member of the Parliamentary Press Gallery. He now comments on national affairs with the authority of a person who for eight years took part in them.

Another reversed the process. Formerly editor of a large Montreal daily, he successfully ran for Parliament on Nov. 8 and now writes a column that is refreshing in its discernment. He brings the professional journalist's powers of observation and writing to bear on national affairs from a novel position within the Liberal caucus. And because all is new to him, he sees at times with a clarity of vision surpassing that of veteran reporters whose very familiarity with their field tends to obfuscate their vision.

However, politicians who are part-time journalists, or vice versa, suffer from divided loyalty. Journalism and politics are mutually incompatible professions and he who tries to practise both simultaneously will encounter circumstances in which journalistic integrity will compromise his political interests, or in which politics require him to betray his readers.

One can only hope that the editors of the Bugles & Echoes are vigilant.

FOUR-NATION TALKS on the North Pacific fur seal industry opened Monday in Ottawa, Canadian Fisheries Minister Robichaud, left, Dr. S. G. Federov, chairman and Russian representative, and A. F. ## Plans Studied to Enlarge North Pacific Seal Herds

OTTAWA (CP) — Delegates from the U.S.S.R., United States, Japan and Canada began discussion Monday on how best to maintain the multi-million dollar north Pacific fur seal industry.

The occasion was the start of the ninth annual meeting of the North Pacific Fur Seal Commission—established in 1957 on an interim basis to conserve North Pacific fur seals.

Dr. S. G. Federov of the U.S.S.R., chairman of the meeting, reminded the opening session that in addition to study of traditional investigations—continuing joint research by the four nations on seal stocks—some new areas will be discussed.

These included "joint research on the quality of seal skins in relation to sex, age, season and method of sealing."

"An experimental batch of seal skins submitted by each party was kindly accepted and is currently being processed at a plant of the Fourke Fur Company, an American firm."

The meeting should also determine what further efforts the commission should make to study skin quality and to provide a "fundamental convention term related to increasing the fur seal resources of the North Pacific."

The present interim convention, designed to prevent depletion of seal herds and arrive at the maximum economic size of kills, expires in 1969. The term of the convention is renewable. The initial six-year term was extended to 12 years.

Research agencies of the four governments are engaged in continuous study at sea of North Pacific fur seals whose breeding grounds are located on islands in the Bering Sea.

LAND RESEARCH

Land research is conducted by the U.S.—on the U.S.-owned Pribilof Islands, off the Atlantic coast, and by the U.S.S.R. on the Commander and Robben Islands, which it controls.

Canada and Japan do not take part in the commercial seal harvest. However, the convention provides that each of these countries receives 15 per cent of the seal skins derived from the Pribilof Islands, and, subject to certain specifications, a similar percentage of the take from the two U.S.S.R. islands.

The U.S. and the U.S.S.R. take a controlled catch of seals on their islands each year.

The North Pacific seal yields one of the more desired and expensive pelts in the world. The animal has a soft, velvety underfur and is brown.

American and Russian skins sent to Canada eventually arrive in Montreal for auction. The most recent auction, on Jan. 25, realized $621,241 from the sale of 5,818 skins, an average price of $106.76. This consignment included 1,499 skins from the U.S.S.R.—largest single shipment from the country to Canada under the convention.

A similar sale in September last year yielded a gross of $945,561 to Canada. All moneys go into the federal purse.

Dr. W. M. Sprules, director, international fisheries service, fisheries department, Ottawa, and Canadian representative on the commission, said the recent auction offered skins of "very, high quality." The U.S.S.R. skins were of "top quality and brought a top price."

TWO FACTIONS BATTLE FOR COMPANY CONTROL

SEATTLE (AP)—Two factions battling for control of Northwest Hydrofoil Lines Inc. jostled Monday at a stockholders' meeting.

At stake is control of the company which owns the hydrofoil vessel Victoria, now undergoing tests at Baltimore. The ship was built for service between Seattle and Victoria.

A group of seven stockholders contend William I. Niedermair, Winslow, president of the company, and Allan Pomeroy, former Seattle mayor and secretary of the firm, issued additional stock without the approval of the board of directors in order to shift the voting balance of the corporation.

The company's six-man board is deadlocked—three men in each faction. The showdown is expected Wednesday when new directors are elected.

IN VANCOUVER

CPR President Answers Critics

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of the Canadian Pacific Railway said Monday poor ship scheduling is causing delays in handling grain in the port of Vancouver.

In a press conference Robert A. Emerson said charges the CPR is responsible are unwarranted.

Mr. Emerson met the press after a one-hour meeting with Mayor Rathie at which he told the mayor that he knew nothing of reported large-scale CPR developments in the city.

He told reporters: "We came out (from Montreal) to see what all the shouting is about—everyone is throwing rocks at us."

New Proposal On Canadian Fishing Zone

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has made a new proposal to the United States for an exclusive fishing zone along the Canadian East and West coasts, the Commons was told Monday.

External Affairs Minister Martin said he made some progress on the issue in talks Friday and Saturday with U.S. Secretary Dean Rusk in Washington.

A reply was awaited from the U.S. on the proposal, which he did not spell out.

Legislation was passed by Parliament in 1964 to establish a 12-mile exclusive fishing zone and closing off all bays and straits to foreign fishing vessels. But the law has not been applied pending negotiations with the U.S. and European countries.

He said it is possible the railway will develop its property here with an office building, hotel operation, as has been reported.

But this would have to await the settlement of a dispute with the national harbors board over ownership of some key pieces of property.

Mr. Emerson said the storage capacity of port elevators is "relatively small" in relation to the amount of grain shipped.

But there were still 11,000,000 bushels of wheat in local elevators Monday.

He was told the Canadian National Railways is embarking on a program to improve its Vancouver-area port facilities that will eventually cost $70,000,000.

He said the CPR is planning to spend "nothing like that." It was spending $2,300,000 to improve some facilities.

Some of the CPR's problems were caused by "rash and irresponsible" statements made by prominent persons, he said.

He said a remark by Agriculture Minister Greene that CPR boxcars were tied up in the U.S. when they could be used for shipping grain was erroneous.

Mr. Emerson said the CPR has no intention of going out of the railway business and concentrating on development of its real estate.

He said claims that the decision to discontinue the Dominion trans-continental train was a violation of the company's original treaty were incorrect. Under the agreement the railway got $25,000,000 and 25,000,000 acres of Crown land in return for building a railway.

"The public never got a better deal."

He said the railway made the country.

BY FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

Car Safety Code Planned

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Cautiously moving into the automobile safety field the federal government is developing an automotive safety code.

Industry Minister Drury informed the Commons Monday that the government is preparing such a code. It will be made up of sections dealing with the human factor, the vehicle and environment.

The minister, however, disclosed that there was no governmental authority in this country exercising active control over the automobile industry relating to the safer production of cars.

He said it is anticipated that the new code will influence the development of safer automobiles. "It could also serve as the basis for achieving uniformity of vehicle legislation and regulations."

Mr. Drury replied to questions by Heward Grafftey (PC — Brome Missisquoi).

Mr. Drury said preparation of the safety code has been assigned to the Canadian government specifications board, which will undertake this work in co-operation with officials of provincial governments and interested industrial, professional, technical, safety and research organizations.

The minister said, "it is proposed to give a high priority to the vehicle section, but the sections dealing with the human and environmental factors will be proceeded with simultaneously."

The code will contain information on characteristics of drivers and roads which are related to accident frequency. The vehicle section will contain information, including standards to govern safety features which is intended to reduce the number of accidents and reduce the severity of injuries when accidents do occur.

Mr. Grafftey enquired if the government had any statistics indicating the number of deaths and injuries caused by rear-end collisions and the propulsion of tools, jacks and other items from the trunk into the back seat of the car. He wondered what steps had been taken to eliminate the use of cardboard or similar material to separate the trunk from the back seat in any 1966 model cars produced or imported into Canada?

Mr. Drury said the Dominion Bureau of Statistics did not keep statistics of that nature.

'Amateur' Experts Bring Sharp Reply

REGINA (CP) — The president of Chrysler Corp. of Canada has criticized the "present rash of loud-mouthed amateurs who are sounding off about auto safety."

Ron W. Tidgham of Toronto told a service club the auto industry has pressed for years for auto safety but "amateurs" now are using it as a springboard to get their names in the news.

"Who had heard of Heward Grafftey, Conservative MP from Bromemissisquoi, Que., until he began his attack on automobiles several months ago?"

"If he was a bona fide expert he wouldn't be saying some of the things he has been saying."

And Mr. Tidgham said, good material for a TV program on auto safety was "ignored or left on the cutting room floor because it didn't support the negative aim of the program."

He said the industry spends more than $500,000,000 a year on safety research. His own company had installed 48 safety features in cars in the last 20 years.

Red Trade Hopes Dim

TORONTO (CP) — Prospects for increased trade between Canada and Communist countries during the next decade are dim, a University of Toronto professor says in a trade study published Monday.

Prof. Ian M. Drummond says Canada may hope for continuing large grain sales to China for some years, but grain sales to the Soviet Union and eastern European Communist states will dwindle during the next 10 years.

"Our other exports have always been small, and they will continue to be small, he says in the study sponsored by the Canadian trade committee of the Private Planning Association of Canada.

"Even if there is a substantial growth of East-West trade, Canadian trade is not likely to be affected very much because for many products we are one of the most unlikely suppliers and one of the least accessible markets in the western world," Prof. Drummond says.

Huge Claim Filed By Dynamic Company

CALGARY (CP) — Dynamic Petroleum Products Ltd. has filed a statement of claim against two other oil companies in an effort to recover 23,840 acres of petroleum and natural gas leases in the Rainbow Lake area of northwestern Alberta.

Dynamic claims a greater interest in the leases or $149,000,000.

The claim by the independent Calgary-based firm is against Pan American Petroleum Corp. and Socony Mobil Oil of Canada Ltd. It is believed to be the largest such claim ever launched in this city.

The statement was filed in Alberta Supreme Court Monday after the Toronto Stock Exchange had closed trading for the day.

Company directors have announced that under the circumstances they have refrained from trading Dynamic shares.

INSURANCE RATES HIT U.S. SHIPS

LONDON (AP)—An American shipping delegation met Monday with the Institute of London Underwriters to protest against the institute's intention to double insurance rates on freight carried in ships more than 20 years old.

Such a measure, although only advisory and not binding for underwriters, could affect about one-third of the 900-ship U.S. merchant fleet.

A spokesman for a major line's agents said: "We are unable to comment on the situation because the entire matter is under consideration."

The Rainbow Lake area, site of intensive oil exploration and speculation of large oil reserves, recently was declared an oil field by the Alberta oil and gas conservation board.

In its statement of claim, Dynamic alleges the defendants violated an agreement by surrendering additional leases, assigned by Dynamic to Mobil by agreement, without giving notice.

After the leases were surrendered, the claim alleges, the defendants had the leases re-installed to them by the Crown because they had been registered as owners of the leases.

Dynamic says it holds a three-per-cent, gross overriding royalty on a petroleum and natural gas reservation of 16,320 acres on which Pan American now is drilling its first well.

It says it has the same interest on another 29,600 acres of petroleum and natural gas leases in townships to the east and south of the Pan American land.

Ex-Reeve Slams District Claims

You've Never Had It So Good, Socred Tells Municipalities

Municipalities and the provinces at large "never have had it so good" a former president of the Union of B.C. Municipalities told the legislature Monday.

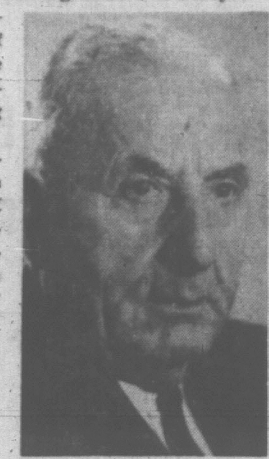

Charles MacSorley (SC—Burnaby), a former reeve of Burnaby and ex-chief of the province-wide municipal organization, made the claim during the budget debate.

"I have been in municipal affairs since 1945 and have known other administrations and I know that at no time have municipalities had as good co-operation from the province as they have had from this government," he said.

"I am sure at no time, up to 15 years ago, would the municipalities have been treated as well as they are now."

He pointed out the $4 increase in per capita grants to municipalities forecast by the budget speech would add $400,000 to Burnaby municipality's revenues this year.

Mr. MacSorley said the budget also will help by subsidizing the ferry system to prevent fare

MacSORLEY and ferry fees increases and continue the economic development of Vancouver Island.

Burnaby Pays for Hospitals

The purchase of more Pacific Great Eastern Railway shares also will expand a system that is bringing prosperity to the entire province, he said.

"We never have had it so good as in this budget," Mr. MacSorley said.

Mr. MacSorley criticized the contention of Alan Macfarlane (L—Oak Bay) that the provincial government should relieve local government of hospital construction cost. He said Burnaby always has contributed to the cost of building its hospitals and ratepayers are expected to pass another money bill this year.

He touched off some heckling when he claimed Health Minister Eric Martin told him that 3,700 nursing home beds "not just 570" are covered by dollar-a-day B.C. Hospital Insurance Service payments.

"The minister told me that yesterday and I took his word for it," said Mr. MacSorley. "The minister can speak for himself when he closes this debate."

Mr. MacSorley said the Assessment Equalization Act should be reviewed to ensure that all municipalities bear a fair share of education costs and he urged that the teacher salary grants from the province be increased.

Fund Asked For Crash Victims

Traffic accident victims should be compensated from a government-administered fund in the same manner as workmen are now, Rae Eddie (NDP—New Westminster) told the legislature Monday.

He proposed that all vehicle owners should pay a special assessment for their licence plates which would go into the fund.

He said accident victims would be compensated regardless of fault.

"We should be moving to set up a public board or commission to collect funds and administer coverage to compensate victims of automobile accidents at cost, similar to the Workmen's Compensation Board operating in the industrial field," Mr. Eddie said.

"All vehicles would be levied an assessment for coverage in the same way that an employer does under the Workmen's Compensation Act."

"Accident victims would have their claims taken care of in the same manner as an injured workman does under the Act."

The WCB pays a weekly sum to injured workers while off the job and disability payments to those handicapped permanently. It also pays pensions to families of workmen killed on the job.

"The (traffic accidents) board would have additional responsibility of examining into safety features on the highways as does the accident prevention department of the WCB," said Mr. Eddie.

"This would include the need for driver training and vehicle inspection."

Mr. Eddie said vehicle owners could buy collision and other auto insurance policies for coverage over and above the basic coverage if they wished.

He said this system has worked well in Saskatchewan where it was introduced 20 years ago.

CAMPBELL CLAIMS:

Others Studying Regional Boards

Governments in the U.S. and other parts of Canada have studied the system of regional district administration developing in B.C.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell Monday called efforts in other parts of Canada to change the structure of local government "chaos" and "disaster."

"Regional government is a more flexible vehicle than can be found anywhere," because it reflects the changes in growth, Mr. Campbell said in the legislature.

Regional boards encompass trading areas to give orderly control over an economic unit and as multi-purpose boards they avoid the confusion of a number of single-purpose organs within a single area.

Accepting a royal commission recommendation for reconstructing local government is not a good idea because experts are in a better position to make such suggestions, the minister felt.

And the Saskatchewan plan, to develop the county system, he called "disaster."

"Let the structure of local government be changed by those in the field," he said.

The regional district plan so far has proven acceptable and the object of country-wide study, he added.

Ontario took up the B.C. act permitting regional government and recommended to its legislature "an act to all practical purposes exactly the same as our own," Mr. Campbell said.

He spoke also of "instant towns," of which B.C. now has four, ending the likelihood of any more company-owned shack towns, which he called "a disgraceful part of our development."

Allowing communities to incorporate at birth in his department's way of meeting the challenge of growth in B.C., Mr. Campbell said.

Registration Cards Urged for Canadians

The "wiles of young females" would be foiled if Canada resorted to its wartime national registration cards, members of the legislature were told Monday.

Although it is a federal matter, Mrs. Lois Haggen (NDP—Grand Forks-Greenwood) said the registration should be discussed at the federal-provincial level.

"We need some form of identification for young persons, or young-looking persons, especially those of the female sex who go into beer parlors where practically the whole onus is put on the person serving to determine the age," Mrs. Haggen said.

"He is the one who takes the rap if he makes the mistake in judgment, pitting his experience against the wiles of young females in particular, who are past masters in disguise of age."

MRS. HAGGEN ... 'mad, mad world'

Cards would "identify each one of us as a certain, single human being."

Mrs. Haggen noted a previous observation that national registration could also substitute for a voter's list "made up from spotty and inadequate enumeration."

Yet, the spray had been recommended by both governments' agencies for years, Mrs. Haggen said.

"Each government is afraid to move because they have no

MLA CHARGES:

No Action Taken In Spray Fray

People are committing "suicide" with agricultural sprays in a "mad, mad world," B.C.'s only woman MLA said Monday. And neither the federal nor provincial government wants to take action, she said.

Mrs. Lois Haggen (NDP—Grand Forks-Greenwood) charged in the legislature that provincial and federal governments have the farmer in a squeeze over a ban on dairy products and meat in her riding.

Neither government wants to take responsibility in what to the farmer has become a "very bitter experience — and they don't know yet whether the level of contamination found in our cattle was harmful to human beings."

Neither federal nor provincial governments have co-operated on the problem of pollution by dieldrin, which can poison humans, she said.

RECOMMENDED
The federal food and drug agency put the ban on some farms a year ago and after a period of study, the farmers were told again that the insecticide was present in products at five times the previous level.

Yet, the spray had been recommended by both governments' agencies for years, Mrs. Haggen said.

"Each government is afraid to move because they have no trust in the other government," she said.

A joint research program should have been entered into, she added. But farmers had been left to themselves.

"We are committing suicide but no one wants to take the responsibility of doing something. We are in a mad, mad world as far as control of pollution is concerned."

Rotary Wheel Turning Up 62nd Year

Rotarians in Victoria will join in world-wide celebrations Wednesday of the 61st anniversary of the organization.

Local Rotary president Jack Hoesz will present to Mayor Alfred Toone a framed copy of Rotary's "Four West Test" for display in his office.

The code was developed for the guidance of Rotarians in their personal and business relationships.

It asks: Is it the truth? Is it fair to all concerned? Will it build goodwill and better friendships? Will it be beneficial to all concerned?

The Rotary Club of Victoria was one of the first organized in Canada, in 1913. Mayor Toone has been a member since 1963.

No Solution to Pollution

He contended that school district superintendents should be purely civil servants hired by the province and shifted from one area to another "so they are not tied to one school board."

The present system is difficult for superintendents because they must work with boards yet be responsible to the education department, he said.

Mr. MacSorley concluded with an observation that it would be impossible to "put teeth" into air pollution control laws because there is no solution to the problem at present, other than closing down plants.

"No one has the answer yet, not the municipal governments, the provincial government or the researchers."

He said Burnaby had forced several mills creating a fly ash problem to install expensive equipment recommended by the B.C. research council, to no avail.

"So all they can do is say to a mill, 'here, you stop the fly ash or we close you down.' That's the only kind of teeth that are effective and no municipality or provincial government is prepared to go that far."

2 Impaired Drivers Get Jail Sentences

A man convicted of his third impaired driving offence in four years was sentenced to three months Monday.

Student Gets Break In Court

A university student who couldn't raise money for a fine got a break from the judge Monday.

He was remanded for sentence on a drinking charge until after classes end for the year. Dominic Watson, 18, of 1330 Mitchell, was one of eight youths who appeared in Central Magistrate's Court Monday on liquor offences.

Watson admitted to drinking in a car Feb. 6 in Oak Bay.

But he said he had borrowed money to go to university here and he couldn't raise $50 for a fine.

Magistrate William Osetler set May 1 as a date for sentencing. Steve McAdam, 19, of Maple Bay, and John Sreacion, 18, of Duncan, each paid $50 on the same charge.

Also drinking in public but in another car parked at another location in Oak Bay the same night was Bruce Tedesco, 308 Cowichan. He was also fined $50.

Paul R. Barbeau and Frederick J. Jones, both of Work Point Barracks, were fined $35 for being minors in possession Jan. 29.

Also fined $35 were Richard Weavers, 20, of 340 Island Highway, who was caught Jan. 27, and David Bapty, 20, of 912 Deal, who was found with eight bottles of beer in his car Jan. 22.

Court Passes First Hurdle

Oak Bay council Monday approved in principle joint municipal construction of a new Family and Children's court.

Approval was given to Oak Bay's share of the $6,000 required to cover preparation for the working drawings.

The provincial government will also be asked to share in the cost of construction on behalf of the unorganized territories.

He was one of six men answering impaired charges in central court.

Jack Caton, 398 Ker, was stopped by Esquimalt police Wednesday after he drove on the wrong side of Lampson St. He had previous convictions for impaired driving in 1962 and 1963, central court was told.

Also jailed was Kenneth Maurice Sampson, Brentwood, for impaired driving Saturday night on Government and Discovery streets.

He also pleaded guilty to driving while suspended and was jailed 21 days on each count. Terms are consecutive. Police said he hit a barricade on Government St. Magistrate William Osetler suspended his licence 18 months.

Court was told Sampson had a previous impaired conviction in March, 1965.

Keith A. Owen was fined $400 for impaired driving, also Saturday evening.

POWER POLE
Court was told he drove at speeds up to 55 m.p.h. between Town and Country to Mayfair shopping plazas.

His vehicle ended up against a power pole on Finlayson.

Also pleading guilty to impaired offences were Peter Maurin, Gilles Bay, Hugh C. Reston, address unavailable, and Tony Christensen, 634 Pine. All were remanded for sentence.

'BROTHERHOOD DOWN TO EARTH'

Three hands, white, brown and black, reach toward a globe circled with the word Brotherhood. Beneath is the comment—Let's bring it down to earth. This is the symbol of Brotherhood Week, celebrated Feb. 29 to 27 across the nation to promote tolerance and understanding among people of all races and religions. Sponsored by the Canadian Council of Churches and Jews, Brotherhood Week has been declared by an order-in-council of the provincial cabinet and has been endorsed by Prime Minister Pearson.

This is the 19th year Brotherhood Week has been observed in Canada.

Its purposes are:

1. To give people an opportunity to rededicate themselves as individuals to the basic ideals of respect for human life and human rights which are the cornerstones of a democratic way of life.

2. To dramatize the practical things which every individual can do to promote an understanding and realization of these ideals.

3. To enlist active citizen support in year-round activities to build a spirit of brotherhood.

4. To provide an opportunity for Canadians of every race, color, creed and ethnic origin to meet one another in a friendly atmosphere and to learn more about one another's culture.

Cyclist Injures Back Hitting Fence, House

A young motorcyclist is in fair condition today in St. Joseph's Hospital after crashing through a fence and into a house Monday night.

Police said Thomas Thibault, 17, of 82 San Jose, sustained a back injury.

Police said he apparently lost control of his bike and crashed through a fence at 3035 Tillicum and continued into the house.

He had been riding the motorcycle for about only two weeks.

FOUR HURT

Four persons were injured in auto accidents in Saanich Sunday.

Released Monday from St. Joseph's Hospital was Elizabeth Hamilton, 17, of 9588 Ardmore.

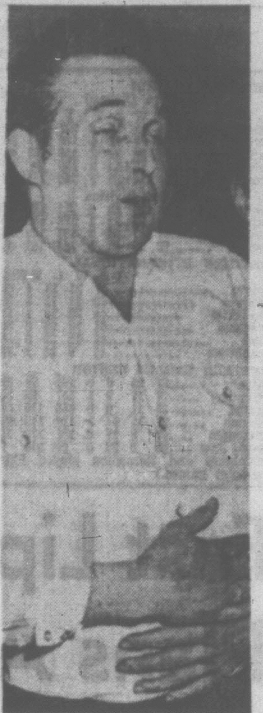

Police said she struck a power pole on the Pat Bay Highway near the entrance to Beaver Lake.

Damage to her auto was estimated at $1,200.

Another accident Sunday at Quadra and Pat Bay Highway caused $2,500 damage.

Treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital were Donald Braden, 125 Roslyn, driver of one vehicle, and passenger Eric James Braden, 2718 Roscherry.

Also treated but not admitted was Ian A. Jamieson, 5000 Georgia Park Terrace, police identified him as driver of the other car.

GROANING WINNER of pancake-eating contest in Liberal, Kansas, is Dean Hawk, 28, who won title by eating 29 pancakes in 60 minutes. Today is Shrove Tuesday, pancake day.

Non-Americans Dominate Oscar Night Nominations

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Sound of Music, and Dr. Zhivago won the most nominations—ten each—among movie candidates for Oscars. Ship of Fools sailed close behind the eight.

The nominations announced Monday are for awards to be presented April 15 by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

Out of the 20 acting nominations, the academy chose 12 non-Americans. Last year it presented all its acting Oscars to players from outside the U.S.

Julie Andrews, who won last year for Mary Poppins, was nominated for her role as melodic governess in The Sound of Music. Two other English actresses also are candidates: Julie Christie as the success-hungry heroine of Darling and Samantha Eggar, kidnaper victim of The Collector.

Simone Signoret, who won an Oscar in 1959's Room at the Top, is listed this time for Ship of Fools.

Elizabeth Hartman, the blind girl of A Patch of Blue, her first film, is the only American among candidates for starring actress.

Laurence Olivier, whose Hamlet won him the statuette in 1948, received a seventh nomination for Othello. Richard Burton, another British Shakespearean, was named as the disenchanted agent of The Spy Who Came in from the Cold. As ship's doctor in Ship of Fools, Vienna's Oskar Werner was nominated.

PICK TWO AMERICANS

Americans chosen are Rod Steiger as The Pawnbroker and Lee Marvin, alcoholic gun-fighter of Cat Ballou.

Nominated as 1955's other best pictures were Darling and A Thousand Clowns.

Hiroshi Teshigahara, chosen for the Japanese film Woman in the Dunes, is the first Oriental to be nominated for a best-director award.

Others nominated are two-time winner David Lean, Dr. Zhivago; three-time winner William Wyler, The Collector; former winner Robert Wise, The Sound of Music, and newcomer John Schlesinger for Darling.

Stanley Mann, a Toronto native now living in London, and John Kohn, co-authors of The Collector screenplay, were among those nominated for an Oscar for best adaptation. Mann and Kohn adapted The Collector from the novel of the same name.

Best foreign-language film nominations were Blood on the Land (Greece); Dear John (Sweden); Kwaidan (Japan); Marriage Italian Style (Italy); The Shop on Main Street (Czechoslovakia).

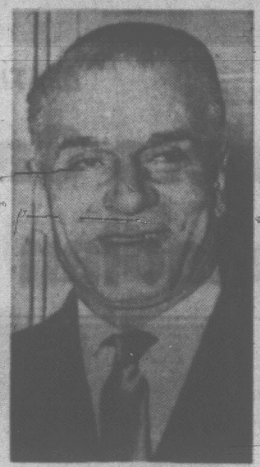

The academy's 2,703 voting members will choose Oscar winners by secret ballot. Bob Hope again will preside at the nationally televised presentations in Santa Monica.

ANDREWS... Sound of Music

CHRISTIE... Darling

OLIVIER... Othello

Moral Control Through Law Questioned

A University of Victoria professor Monday questioned whether personal morals should be regulated by laws.

Ronald Cheffins, associate professor of political science, said law breaks down when it is widely violated and little respected.

He gave prohibition in the United States as an example of how law will be flouted if it is unacceptable to society. Mr. Cheffins said adultery is an offence in 45 states of the U.S. but while widely practised it is seldom prosecuted.

Amalgamation Meeting Tonight

A meeting on the View Royal panhandle question and its proposed amalgamation with Esquimalt will be held tonight at 8 at Craigflower School.

Esquimalt municipal engineer John Graeme and assessor John Ismay will be present to answer questions from View Royal residents.

The meeting is sponsored by the Panhandle Residents' Committee for the Truth Regarding Amalgamation with Esquimalt.

Student Blasts Smith For Hitler-Like Rule

'TELEvised EXECUTIONS LOGICAL'

QUEBEC (CP) — If death sentences are to be maintained, they should be made public and televised, Robert Clieche, Quebec leader of the New Democratic Party, said Monday night.

Mr. Clieche, speaking to members of a service club, said those who advocate the retention of the death penalty have one main argument, that it serves as a deterrent by providing an example.

"Well, if these people want to be logical," he said, "justice Minister Wagner must stop executing these criminals in hiding . . . and reinstate public executions."

Mr. Wagner is a strong supporter of the death penalty.

A Rhodesian African blasted the Smith regime when he spoke Monday at University of Victoria.

Robert Zwofra, 36, compared Rhodesia with Hitler's Germany. He said 4,000 persons are in prison for political offences, all non-white organizations are proscribed and every effective political leader of non-whites has been removed.

Mr. Zwofra, who himself was jailed 14 months for political activities, is now studying at UCL.A. He criticized the lack of stronger action by the British against the breakaway Smith government.

Mr. Zwofra said, "It's a matter of kith and kin. No Englishman in England would shoot an Englishman in Rhodesia. If the Africans had revolted it would have been the other way. Yet if they don't help, the Africans will never trust the European again."

'LET'S FIND OUT FOR SURE IF MONSTER DOES EXIST'

LONDON (UPI) — A member of Parliament today called for a full-scale government investigation of Scotland's Loch Ness Monster to prove whether the fabled creature is "face, or a wild fairy tale."

Laborite Marcus Lipton suggested that the 30-mile-long stretch of Loch Ness water be dredged. He also urged the government to use "submarines, and pontoons and sonic soundings."

"We can then prove whether the Loch Ness monster story is fact or a wild fairy tale," Lipton said.

Lipton's proposal was apparently prompted by a report Sunday from Royal Air Force and defense ministry experts that five-year-old movie photographs allegedly showed the monster was "probably an animate object."

countless searches and studies for the monster.

The experts said the object in the picture was about 92 feet long, at least six feet wide and five feet high, and was moving at about 10 miles an hour.

While the experts did not commit themselves on whether the object in the film was a monster, former parliamentarian David James, who organized the investigations, bureau, said he now believed "there is possibly a herd of them there . . . a species of animal which has been breeding for 5,000 years."

Reports of something living beneath the surface of the lake have circulated in Scotland since 565 A.D. But the existence of the creature—called a monster by a passer-by who claimed to have seen it in 1933—has neither been proved nor disproven.

Quebec Indians Unhappy

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario Indian chief says Canadian Indians have more trouble and hardship in Quebec than in any other province.

Chief Wilmer Nadjewan, chief of the Cape Croker reserve, said in an interview Monday that Quebec Indians have poor communication with provincial government officials and have difficulty getting anyone to take a sympathetic interest in their problems.

He declined to cite specific problems or incidents, but added:

"Through a acquaintance and friends I have talked to in Quebec, I believe conditions to be poor for Indians there."

When asked whether relations with the government had not improved since the election of the Lesage government in 1960, Chief Nadjewan replied:

"People in a government may change, but attitudes don't."

Drys Win Battle Of Bottle

PORTLAND, Me. (AP) — The "drys" have beaten the "wets" in a close referendum on whether to permit the sale of liquor on Sunday.

In record numbers citizens in this eastern region rejected a 1965 legislative act permitting limited Sunday sales.

With the counting in eight small precincts incomplete, the unofficial tally was: No, 102,490, yes 100,764.

Thus Maine remains one of seven states in the United States where you can't buy a drink on Sunday.

The referendum was called after petitions were signed by 55,000 persons. Spearheading the drive was the Maine Christian Civic League, made up of Protestant church groups.

Supporters generally argued that the issue was economic, not moral. They said Sunday sales would boost the state's tourist business and as a result the whole economy.

Crash Kills Sidney Man

A 35-year-old Sidney man was killed Sunday when his car struck a bridge abutment at Clinton near Cache Creek.

Funeral services for Charles Scott will be announced later by Sands Funeral Chapel of Roset.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Osborne Scott of Sidney; a sister, Mrs. Douglas Shadlock of Halifax; and a brother, Mr. Osborne Scott, of Okanagan Mission.

Letter Revives Water Argument

The old problem of pollution majority would favor piped water and council should initiate it.

Reeve Hugh Curtis said council did that two years ago, and asked Mr. Life what was the response.

"The petition was drawn up by Saanich and received not a signature as far as we know," replied the engineer.

"I am not aware of any new request. I have received no indication of any change in the people's attitude."

The water line connection is near the entrance of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, half a mile from the nearest point of Prospect Lake.

Fruit Shack Blaze Studied In Saanich

Saanich police and fire officials are investigating a $500 fruit shed fire on Delmonte which broke out Saturday evening.

The blaze destroyed a shed owned by Jake Funk, 633 Pine St. Cause of the fire has not been determined.

A fire department spokesman said the shed was empty at the time of the fire.

When firemen arrived on the scene the fire was too advanced to save the building.

TEE TOPICS

By Ernie Fedoruk

Dick Munn and Bill Wakeham both blossomed out in golf at the same time, and it is only sheer coincidence that both have decided to make their big moves as professionals at almost an identical moment.

BILL WAKEHAM

Vancouver's Point Grey club waves the prestigious finger at Munn, who for the past 3½ years has been butting his head at Cedar Hill.

Meadowbrook Country Club in St. Louis, a 36-hole, has extracted a definite "aye" from Wakeham.

Wakeham, 25, will be the teaching pro at the St. Louis course. The former Times Island Open champion started his apprenticeship at Calgary last summer.

Munn, 23, will be the giver-of-lessons at Point Grey while also serving as an assistant to Leroy Goldsworthy.

Both have been promised considerable freedom to represent their respective clubs in tournaments.

Although he was his own boss at Cedar Hill and will be recognized as an assistant at Point Grey, it wasn't a difficult decision for Munn. While Dick doesn't say so, it has been whispered that Goldsworthy plans to retire within two years.

If that's the case, then Munn, strongly supported by Stanley Leonard, will be standing first in line for the big job.

The Point Grey assistant's vacancy cropped up, by the way, when Al Kennedy left to take on the head man's role at Quilchena. Also making a move in Vancouver was Gordie Fairburn, from the assistant's post at Shaughnessy to take over at Pitt Meadows.

So that leaves a vacancy at Cedar Hill. No matter how hard he tries, Lyle Barnes will have a hard time filling those size 9 brogues left behind by Munn.

That canary-yellow Cloud Nine that drifted through 17 red lights Monday was driven by Milton Dow.

Up to Monday, Milt was the most worried chairman ever elected to guide a National Association of Left-handed Golfers' tournament. (This year's show, at Colwood and Uplands on July 17-22, leaves the U.S. for the first time.)

On Feb. 14, local lefties gun-flicked their way through 4,961 envelopes that were to distribute entry forms to accredited NALG members. Somehow, Milton's ulcers assumed that it would take "four to six weeks" before the first completed entry forms would start trickling in.

Well, sir, you could have knocked Milt over with a left hook yesterday. When he opened the NALG box at the Post Office, he pulled out over 50 entries. The majority were from the Carolinas, North and South; Texas and California.

SHORT CHIPS: Jay Wilson, one of Paul Trapp's assistants at Victoria Golf Club, came up with his first hole-in-one last week. He aced the eighth at Oak Bay. Former Oak Bay pro Laurie Carroll is back in the golf business.

He's gone into partnership with Freddie Painter and the two have taken over the operation at Douglas Golf Links.

That's where, incidentally, the Victoria District Committee will again stage a three-day junior golf clinic during the Easter holidays.

Most welcome is the return of Cowichan to the District tournament matches. Uplands' Frank Scroggs and Gord Fallow will defend the pins next Sunday against Duncan pro Norma Bodden and Mike Kelly.

That means seven clubs are now engaged in the competition. They are: George Vale, Colwood, Uplands, Victoria, Cedar Hill, Cowichan and Ardmore.

The emergence of the so-called "little" clubs is a healthy sign for golf.

Yen for Revenge Tonic for Lerner

(Times News Services)

Hersh Lerner defied the advice of his doctor and has earned a chance to atone for a dismal showing he made three years ago in the Canadian curling championships.

Lerner, a 32-year-old Winnipegger, won the right to represent Manitoba in the 1966 championships scheduled March 7 to 11 in Halifax by defeating Bruce Hudson of Winnipeg 11-7 Saturday.

Lerner's rink was one of four who gained the Canadian finals with provincial victories during the weekend.

A few months ago doctors told Lerner he should drop out of competitive curling. But Lerner wanted to make up for his showing in the 1963 Canadian championships in which he won three and lost seven for the worst record carded by a Manitoba rink in the event.

Others on Lerner's rink were Allan Dudar, lead, Bob Dudar, second, and Bob Lemacha, vice-skip.

Ron Northcott of Calgary qualified Saturday to represent Alberta by defeating Dave Gerlach of Stettler, Alta., in the final. With Northcott were lead Storey, second Bernie Sparkes and vice-skip George Fink.

It could be a big new money-spinning development in curling. But it was not clear whether Manchester United would be free to accept the offer. The English Football League, to which Manchester belongs, has banned the closed circuit televising of league games pending a meeting of clubs March 24.

The league does not allow any league games to be televised live to viewers in their homes for fear it would hurt attendance figures.

Others on Lerner's rink were Allan Dudar, lead, Bob Dudar, second, and Bob Lemacha, vice-skip.

Ron Northcott of Calgary qualified Saturday to represent Alberta by defeating Dave Gerlach of Stettler, Alta., in the final. With Northcott were lead Storey, second Bernie Sparkes and vice-skip George Fink.

It could be a big new money-spinning development in curling. But it was not clear whether Manchester United would be free to accept the offer. The English Football League, to which Manchester belongs, has banned the closed circuit televising of league games pending a meeting of clubs March 24.

The league does not allow any league games to be televised live to viewers in their homes for fear it would hurt attendance figures.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Rinks skipped by Mike Boyd of Kingston and Bill Ross of Humboldt, Sask., were the only ones undefeated going into the third round of the Canadian Schoolboy Curling Championships here today.

Boyd's Ontario representatives Monday coasted to an 11-3 victory over Brian Howes' Alberta rink from Calgary in the second round of the 11-rink, round-robin bonspiel, while Saskatchewan struggled to a 10-4 victory over Nova Scotia in an extra end.

Ontario defeated British Columbia 9-6 and Saskatchewan drubbed Prince Edward Island 12-5 in the opening round Monday afternoon.

The best trick of the day was Quebec's slight of hand in pulling a win out of thin air in its second-round game against Manitoba. The Arvida team skipped by Leslie Hollands edged George Wilson's Charlwood entry 7-6 after trailing 6-0 after the seventh end.

B.C.-EDGED N.E. A single point in the eighth end and three in the ninth brought Quebec within range. A miss by Wilson with Quebec counting three in the final end allowed Quebec to steal the match and even its record at 1-1.

In other Monday night games, British Columbia, skipped by Doug Engstrom of Prince George, counted a single point in the 10th end to nip the Bay Groves - skipped Edmondston, N.B., 4-3, and Wayne Steski's Northern Ontario rink from North Bay gained its initial victory with a 7-6 decision over Newfoundland after drawing the bye in the first round.

Keith MacEachern's Prince Edward Island rink from Charlottetown sat out the second-round bye.

In the first-round, Alberta defeated Danny Herder of St. John's 12-5; New Brunswick downed Quebec 9-6, and Don Glinz of Truro, N.S., skipped his crew to a 9-7 victory over Manitoba.

The Truro rink narrowly missed wrapping up the game in the 10th end. Needing a takeout on Saskatchewan's second position rock with the final skip stone, Glinz nudged the Saskatchewan rock, but not far enough and Nova Scotia had to settle.

University of Victoria Vikings senior men's basketball team didn't have anything worthwhile declaring to custom officers when they returned from a short visit to the U.S. on the weekend.

All the Canadian collegians had to show for their trip was two losses, 85-79 to Everett Junior College, and 74-46 to Skagit Valley J.C.

SHROVE TUESDAY annual pancake race on Salt Spring Island was to be big event there today. Here, last year's winner school principal Jack Evans showed his form.

Father Bauer To Be Guest At Banquet

DUNCAN—Sports celebrity Father David Bauer has been added to the list of distinguished guests to attend the April 1 Sportsmen Dinner here.

The banquet is being organized by the Cowichan Timbermen minor football team.

Father Bauer is the former coach of Canada's Olympic hockey team and now advisor to the National Amateur Hockey team.

He is also a director of the Canada National Fitness Council.

He will join B.C. Lions' coach David Skrien, Lions' all-star linebacker Tom Brown and Olympic track medalist Harry Jerome as club guests.

In only its second year of operation, Cowichan Timbermen minor football club has been invited to send three players to the 1966 development camp held by B.C. Lions.

Cowichan president Mel Massey said Monday the local selection will be announced soon.

The Lions' development camp is primarily for observation and is not a tryout camp.

In past years B.C. boys have come up with athletic scholarships through attendance at the camp.

Schools Voted Down

POWELL RIVER (CP)—Powell River voters Monday rejected a Powell River school board referendum for $989,000 to provide new classroom space, a new elementary school and a new school board administration building-library. Only about 24 per cent of the some 6,000 eligible voters, more than double the usual turnout figure for referendums here, which has been 10-12 per cent.

ISLAND ROUNDUP

Rebel Trustee Charges School Budget 'Padded'

DUNCAN—Rebel school trustee Dr. Neil Dorning has charged that the $2.6 million Cowichan School budget is "grossly padded."

The statement issued on the weekend has stirred a hornet's nest which might break open at a board meeting Thursday.

Dr. Dorning, vice-chairman of the board said, "This year's total could have been cut by at least $100,000."

"The budget is a false one and we are placing a burden on the ratepayers which is uncalled for and unjustified."

"My conscience will not allow me to maintain peace any longer. I'm annoyed at the way this whole financial situation has been conducted."

He went on to question the need for a 55 per cent increase in maintenance costs and a 30 per cent increase in clerical staffing. And he said the $30,000 library cost could be spread over two years.

This morning, chairman Dobson said Dr. Dorning might find the budget figures "tripping him up."

Trustee Dobson said: "We have not yet settled with the works staff regarding wages and indications are there will be a healthy hike, more than allowed for in the budget."

One or two members of the board are indignant at trustee Dorning's outside criticism and Thursday's meeting promises to be a lively one.

COURTNEY (CP)—An inquest jury here ruled Robert Day was negligent in trying to pass a car moments before a crash in which Sgt. James E. Funkhouser of the U.S. Air Force was killed near Oyster River, Dec. 8.

Dty said he was passing a car on a clear road, but the approaching vehicle was hidden by a dip.

NANAIMO—More than 160 air cadets from Duncan, Ladysmith and Nanaimo gathered at Cassidy airport Sunday for in-flight training.

An RCAF Dakota took 17 cadets at a time on a 45-minute flight of the area while the rest of the cadets paraded.

CAMPBELL RIVER—The 78 members of the North Saanich Junior Secondary School Band will present a concert at Campbell River Secondary School this Friday night.

Two busloads of the young musicians will leave North Saanich early Friday morning accompanied by bandmaster S. N. Magee, band manager Gordon Page and members of the parent band committee.

They will be billeted at local homes Friday and Saturday night and return to Victoria Sunday.

DUNCAN—Mrs. Henry Westwick, Cowichan Station, was elected president of the Cowichan-Cobble Hill 4H Advisory Council at the sixth annual meeting held here Monday evening.

Mrs. Westwick was a junior leader and club leader and was vice-president of the council last year.

Her husband is president of the Cowichan Agricultural Society sponsor of six local 4H clubs.

The new council vice-president is George Braithwaite, Cobble Hill. Re-elected as secretary and treasurer, respectively, were Mrs. Hamish Sibbald, Cobble Hill, and Harry Standen, Cowichan Station.

Mrs. Standen was nominated as delegate to the provincial 4H council for the whole area.

DUNCAN—Hanford Wallace and his passenger, Ralph Olson, had lucky escapes from serious injury early Sunday morning.

Wallace rolled his car over a 100-foot bank on Maple Bay Road, crumpled the roof and tore off both doors on the driver's side.

Faulty wiring is suspected as the cause of the fire which did $1,300 damage.

Wallace required hospital treatment for bruises and shock but Olson was unharmed.

Both men live at 1021 Wharncliffe Road, Duncan.

In a Saturday night accident Harvey Leger, Kokslah Road, Duncan, wrecked his British-type sports car.

He failed to make a curve on Bench Road and ended up in the ditch.

Leger suffered only minor face and hand cuts.

NANAIMO (CP)—Dr. William Ricker of the fisheries' research board here was named Sunday to receive the Professional Institute Gold Medal. A leading international fisheries authority, he will be honored March 3 in Ottawa for his work in the field of pure and applied science.

DUNCAN—Three guns were stolen from Bucky's Sports Store, Craig Street, in the early hours of Sunday morning.

The thieves broke the glass front door and made their smash and grab before apartment residents above the store could raise the alarm.

DUNCAN—Car salesman Lawrence McLean of Duncan left his product sitting outside a highway cafe here Saturday night and went for a cup of coffee.

While he sat at the counter the car caught fire and was nearly a total wreck before the fire department could extinguish the blaze.

Too Few on Council

DUNCAN—The urgent need for increased members on city council was underlined Monday. Council was forced to postpone its regular meeting because Mayor Jack Dobson could not raise a quorum.

In fact only Ald. Hamish Mutter and himself were fit to attend.

Aldermen Robert Mason and James Saunders were both on the sick list and Ald. Barney Cooks is presently out of the country.

The provincial cabinet has approved an increase to seven members, but city hall can't go through the necessary mechanics of passing a bylaw... until they get a council quorum.

Better Listening For Outer Ports

Five Vancouver Island communities will soon receive low-power radio transmitters operated by the CBC.

The Board of Broadcast Governors has recommended approval for transmitters at Alert Bay, Port Alice, Port Hardy, Tahsis and Ucluelet.

Driver Jailed

CHEMAMUS—Lumber inspector Robert Wilson of Saltair was jailed for 14 days Monday after pleading guilty to his second impaired driving offence.

Sentence was imposed by Magistrate Lance Heard.

Wilson was arrested Feb. 14 after erratic driving.

LOW BACK PAIN

Is it hard for you to sit down, even harder to get up from a chair because of low back pain? Does this pain make work difficult, keep you from turning over in bed? This nagging, wearisome pain keeps thousands in misery. But here is good news for all such sufferers. Templeton's T.R.C.'s give the desired relief from such suffering quickly, pleasantly. Equally good for lumbago, back-ache, sciatica, leg pains, arthritis, rheumatic and neuritic pain. Get T.R.C.'s for fast relief. 55c, $1.65 at drug counters everywhere.

For extra fast relief, use Templeton's FLAME-Cream. Lotion is the roll-on bottle externally, while taking T.R.C.'s internally. FLAME-Cream, $1.25 at drug counters everywhere. T-40-11

DIRTY AIR HURTING HEARTS?

PORT ALBERNI—Physicians of the Alberni Valley Medical Association are preparing an anti-pollution brief.

The brief will support a petition on pollution to be presented soon to the provincial government by a citizen's committee.

Some of the doctors preparing the brief believe the survey should examine cardiac as well as respiratory diseases.

"You can't have respiratory diseases without additional strain on cardio-vascular muscles," said one doctor.

Budget Approved

NANAIMO—City council last week approved the school board's $8,231,000 budget for 1966.

Arthur Mayse

Some year in the not very distant future, I expect we'll add a new statutory holiday to our national list. It should come on or about February 15, and I hope we will call it Flag Day.

When it does materialize, part of the credit will go to a Victoria school that jumped the gun on the rest of the country, and added something new to our national scene.

Its seven-year-old student committee decided, first, that we should set aside a day for flag observance in Canada, and second, that they weren't going to wait for the slow-poke processes of Ottawa. Then they declared their own flag day at Mount View secondary.

They couldn't, of course, decree a holiday for the occasion. But on Monday with the approval of principal and teachers, they called a special afternoon assembly in Mount View's big, chilly gymnasium. Their audience was a student body of over 500. The school band and the school choir turned out, and two guest speakers were bidden to attend. One of these was radioman Dick Collidge, who spoke well; the other, me.

In that second choice was a fine, if perhaps unconscious irony. As some of you may recall, I was until a little over a year ago, a pretty dour Red Ensign man.

Still, once the fact was accomplished, I made my peace with the new flag, and now accept it with proper Canadian casualness.

To their credit, these young people are not casual. The red maple leaf on its Canadian pale argent commands in very many of them a feeling warmer than mere respect.

I fear, in fact, that if you wish to find a sense of Canadian nationhood, you had best go to the young for it. They are not cumbered with old bitternesses, and they see no bars to unity.

I had never been to a school assembly, and was nervous about the whole business when I drove out to Mount View on Carey Road.

Like most of Victoria's high schools, this one is no youngster. It sits with a utilitarian, slightly weathered air above a playing field green with earliest spring. Its flag pole, which could use a lick of paint, rises from daisy-peppered grass near the main entrance. When I looked that way, the flag was blowing out splendidly in Monday's brisk breeze.

In the general office, several girls of the school committee were sitting in a row. They looked prim, solemn, and a trifle scared. The others came in one by one from last-minute errands, and while we waited for the students to transfer from classes to gym, they arranged the order of procession.

Then, seconds short of 2:15, we formed what the English call a crocodile, and wound off to the assembly.

The bleachers at the far side of the gym were packed top to bottom when we arrived.

A touch of spring had intruded even here. Some of the boys wore sport shirts without jackets. Here and there, a skirt made a splash of color.

The big, stark hall was full of sunshine. It gleamed on the band brasses, and centred on a table decked for what, to the best of my knowledge, was Canada's first flag day ceremony. On the table was a big silver bowl of daisies, and a silver bowl of daisies, and a silver bowl of daisies.

On either side of the table was a bright new flag.

To a school at attention, choir and band combined in "O Canada." The choristers sang first in English, then repeated the anthem in French.

They sang it well, too, in the very accent of French Canada. I wish their opposite numbers in Trois Rivières or Quebec City could have heard them.

I trust there will be other flag days, and who knows but what the next will be observed officially, in all 11 provinces. Meanwhile, in spite of Canada's troubles, she does seem to be raising some likely colts in her pastures.

MRS. HARPER
... we feel sad.

Spoilers Sought By Police

Three acts of vandalism and an attempt at arson were reported by police today.

The arson attempt was discovered Monday during a police investigation of a fire alarm Sunday night at Schofield Roller Rink, 114 Niagara.

Police found vandals had doused a pile of wood at the rear of the building with fuel oil then ignited it.

An alarm was sounded by an unknown person from a nearby pay phone.

By the time fire trucks arrived the fire had burned itself out.

It was the third case of vandalism reported by the roller rink in two weeks. Twice before vandals had thrown fuel oil on a door and set fire to it.

Destroyed Monday night was a quantity of orchids in Government House greenhouse.

Damage to the flowers is estimated a $100 and garden floodlights were also damaged to the extent of $50.

A vacant house at 420 Hillside also was reported damaged.

Police said youths kicked in a door, pulled out the kitchen sink, stood the bath tub on end and damaged the telephone.

Zoning Changes Record Saanich Building Boom

Public hearings will be held next month into five rezoning applications in Saanich.

The five applications seek:

- Three-storey apartment on Richmond Road between Watson and Lansdowne;

- Low-rental housing for senior citizens, northwest corner of Tolmie and Linwood;

- Warehouse on the south side of Cadillac at Douglas;

- Kindergarten on the west side of Shelbourne between Derby and Knight;

- Office and retail store, southeast corner of Oak and Saanich Road.

The Advisory Planning Commission recommended approval of all the applications except the warehouse on Cadillac because it is a residential area.

Gas Siphoner Remanded For Sentence

A youth who siphoned gasoline from a parked car was remanded to March 2 for sentence in central court today.

Francis Paul Harrison, 19, of 2361 Cranmore, pleaded guilty to theft under $50.

Court was told he and another youth, a juvenile, took about 2.5 gallons of gas from a car parked at 15 Beach Drive, Feb. 15.

Police stopped the pair when they were on their way to the home to investigate the theft, court was told.

U.S. Income Tax Assistance Offered

A representative of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service will be in Victoria Friday to help local residents who must file U.S. income tax returns.

Mrs. Irene Wirtschatter will be available for consultation at the Empress Hotel. Appointments may be made in advance by calling EV 4-8111.

MRS. HARPER RETIRES

Free Food Stall Closing Its Doors to Needy March 19

By JIM HUME

There are 160 families in the Greater Victoria area which could be going hungry after March 19.

That's the day the famous surplus food stall operated by Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Harper, 5605 Patricia Bay Highway, closes its doors for the first time in 17 years.

The stall, which over the years has fed and clothed the hungry and the poor, was started 17 years ago by Barbara Green, opening for two months each summer to handle surplus garden crops and distribute them to less fortunate people.

For the past 13 years, under the firm but kind hand of Mrs. Harper, it has been a year-round operation.

"We feel very sad about giving up the operation of the stall," Mrs. Harper said this morning. "But the doctors have advised my husband and myself to take things a little easier."

Mrs. Harper will be 77 this year.

A Successor Needed

There is a chance that the food stall will remain open if the community can produce another woman with Mrs. Harper's ability and love for fellow human beings.

"A group of men from a service club has offered to take the operation over," Mrs. Harper said. "But while their effort is appreciated I really think it's a woman's job. It is certainly a full-time job and not one which can be handled while a man is doing his regular job."

If a volunteer can be found to take Mrs. Harper's spot she will have to be prepared to work long hours for no other reward than the appreciation of the people she helps.

Mrs. Harper, usually a calm woman, bridled a little when she spoke of a recent radio report which stated that the stall could be organized and operated with three hours work a day.

A Full-Time Job

"That's nonsense," she said. "Utter nonsense. The woman taking over would have to be on hand all day—or her husband would—to take telephone calls from people wishing to send food in. The calls come in at all times of the day and night and they have to be answered."

More than a phone answering service is required.

Last Saturday the Harpers received three tons of potatoes and 2,000 loaves of bread for distribution.

"You have to arrange for them to be picked up," said Mrs. Harper. "You have to be on hand to see that they are sorted properly and then you have to arrange for distribution."

Welfare Council Names New Representative

Appointment of Garth Homer as executive director of the Community Welfare Council of Greater Victoria was announced today.

Mr. Homer, at present serving as associate director of the Family Service Agency of Greater Vancouver, will replace Jack Angus, who left recently to take an administrative position with the Community Chest in London, Ont.

Married, with two children, Mr. Homer received his MSW degree from UBC in 1956 and has had extensive experience in welfare work over the past 15 years in Saskatchewan, Ottawa and Vancouver. He and his family will move to Victoria when he takes over direction of the Welfare Council's work in May.

'Take Me Away, I Deserve What I Get'

A man who drove his car through a fence on to a front lawn was fined $350 in central court today for impaired driving.

Jack Albert Sepalla, CCGS Estevan, pleaded guilty.

Court was told he lost control of his car on Millstream Road early today, drove into a ditch and into a yard at 2945 Millstream.

He told officers at the scene: "Take me away. I deserve what I get."

Police estimated damage to his car at $1,750.

Month in Jail

Joseph Justin Provost, no fixed address, was sentenced in central court today to a month in jail.

He pleaded guilty to vagrancy at a hearing Monday. Provost was arrested Saturday morning in a downtown cafe.

tribution. It isn't as easy as it sounds."

One other requirement is listed as absolutely essential by the lady bountiful.

Big Heart Required

"Whoever runs the food stall must have a deep understanding of their fellow man and a love for them. You have to say 'but for the grace of God I would be on the other side of the counter,'" she said.

Mr. Harper echoes the sentiment.

"The person running the stall must understand that the recipients of the food are just as good as they are," he said. "There were some people in this line of work who, unfortunately, don't think that. They look down on people who are badly off."

In 1962 the community recognized Mrs. Harper's service to the needy.

In solemn ceremony in Beacon Hill Park she was awarded the bronze medal given each year to the Citizen of the Year.

She accepted the award graciously saying that the full tribute should go to the 25 people who helped keep the stall operating for, she said, "I could not have done it without them."

Those volunteers still come in for high praise from Mrs. Harper.

"I don't think one of them is under 70-years of age," she said. "None of the regulars are under 70."

The Eagles, the Elks and the Greater Victoria Labour Council also come in for high praise from the elderly lady of Saanich.

'Many Will Tighten Their Belts'

Many large families in Greater Victoria will be tightening their belts if and when the Surplus Food Store closes says welfare administrator F. Alex Davidson.

"It has been a great help to the needy over the years," Mr. Davidson said this morning. "It made the difference between just existing and having at least a marginal supply of food in their homes."

Mr. Davidson said his department carefully screened all applicants before referring them to the stall.

"Most of them were large families who through getting welfare didn't really get enough to live on," he said. "Others were social assistance cases who need the extra food. Though social assistance has gone up recently it still leaves a gap where large families are concerned."

Mr. Davidson was high in his praise for food stall operator Mrs. E. E. Harper.

"Of the many, many people we have received nothing but compliments for the way their applications were handled," he said.

"It will be pity if the stall closes."

"Many families in the area will have to tighten their belts and get along as best they can."

Bathroom Door Smasher Gets 30-Day Rest

A man who insisted on entering an Esquimalt home was sentenced to one month in jail in central court Monday.

Vincent Thompson, 887 Old Esquimalt Rd., pleaded guilty to resisting a police officer.

Police told him to leave the home when he tried to enter through a back door so he came in the front entrance, court was told.

Police said he was "smashing at a bathroom door" to get at a person inside.

When placed in the police vehicle he also attempted to kick out the windows.

Court was told Thompson was convicted of assault causing bodily harm in 1964.

Local Bread Not Rising

There is no indication of a bread price increase in the Victoria area, spokesmen for major bakeries said today.

The prairie bakers blamed increased costs in labor and ingredients as the cause for the price increase.

Bread in Victoria sells for 23 cents a loaf retail and 19.25 cents wholesale.

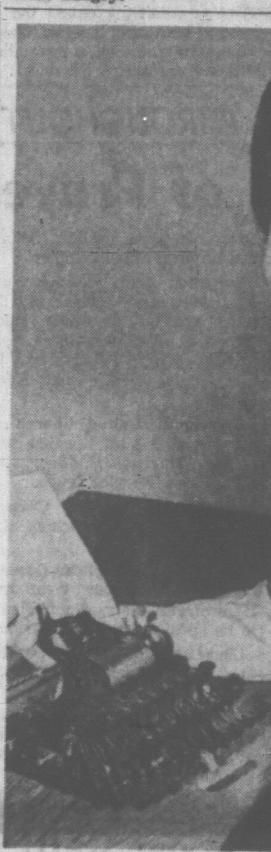

"They take turns each month to pick up the food and clothing donated," she said. "They have been a great help and have done a tremendous amount to keep the stall operating on a monthly basis."

There were others, too. Not so prominent as the principles in the venture but each playing a key part.

"It would be impossible to mention everyone," Mrs. Harper said. "The service clubs, wholesalers and the very many individuals who have contributed to our success. We would however like to mention the children who have given us so many cases of food at different times through their various organizations."

Small Beginning

When the food stall first went into operation 17 years ago it took 29 families under its wing. Within a year it had 75 families to feed and none went hungry.

BLICKENSERFER WAS A GOOD TYPE

By BOB DONAHUE

It's a Blickenserfer. No — it's an Oliver. Or could it be a Mølle?

They can tell you exactly what it is down at Bill Brady's typewriter emporium on Blanshard at View.

For the past 10 years he has been buying up and restoring almost every available ancient typewriter in the area and those are just a few of the names of typewriter manufacturers who gave up the trade 50 and more years ago.

The 20-odd ancient machines he is most proud of are now gracing the shelves of his display window beside the sleek, grey machines of today.

LITTLE CHANGE

There is not really that much difference between the machines of then and now, he said, except that today an electric cacophony vies for attention with the sweet ticking of yesterday's machine.

For example the Blickenserfer (affectionately known as the one to pick fruit," Mr. Pilling said.

Agriculture Minister Frank Richter opposed a suggestion that Jamaicans be imported as pickers. He said one Canadian picker could do the work of 2½ Jamaicans because the best farm workers from the Caribbean island already have gone to Britain.

SOLUTION IN E/ST?

Mr. Richter indicated he felt the solution to the manpower problem would be found in the 160,000 surplus farm workers in eastern Canada.

MLAs approved a motion by David Barrett (NDP — Dewdney) to ask Ottawa to send a manpower expert to the Victoria hearings to find an answer to the shortage.

The farm representatives said the federal government last October offered to meet B.C. labor needs, through internal transfers or immigration, if the provincial government outlined its needs by April 1.

Mr. Richter denied he was causing a hold up. He said he had not met with manpower department officials because he had not been invited to any conferences.

carried them over that lean period."

Many others received welfare or social assistance but still needed extra aid.

Other Harpers?

On March 19 the helping hand will be withdrawn—unless the community can produce another Mr. and Mrs. Harper capable of distributing between $2,500 and $3,000 of surplus food each month to those without the money to provide for themselves.

Mrs. Harper and her husband, due for a well-earned genuine retirement and rest, are standing by ready to guide and help the volunteer.

But remember the requirements: organizational ability, long hours, little reward other than satisfaction, and love for your fellow man.

Mrs. Harper, like the Apostle Paul, rates the last as most important.

Saanich Fights Vote Partitions

Federal Boundary Re-Alignment Asked

Saanich will continue its fight to have the whole municipality within one electoral district both federally and provincially.

A brief prepared by municipal solicitor D. A. M. Patterson for council will be presented when appeals are heard shortly in Ottawa on proposed re-alignment of federal constituency boundaries.

At present, the Saanich Panhandle south of Lansdowne Road to Veterans' Hospital, contains 2,000 persons, is in Victoria constituency.

The federal redistribution at first recommended Saanich south of Cedar Hill Cross Road and east of Maplewood — containing 7,500 persons — be part of Victoria.

In the report handed down at Ottawa that part of Saanich south of Cedar Hill Cross Road be in Victoria.

The last proposal would be smaller in population than the first, but greater than the existing Panhandle section.

The Saanich brief says having part of the municipality in Victoria constituency causes confusion and annoyance to voters who expect to be in Esquimalt-Saanich constituency.

It called the first proposal an aggravation of the situation and the second plan was dismissed as following "an entirely artificial boundary."

The brief also says that even the original proposal would have brought the voting population of Esquimalt-Saanich to $3,000, less than the $8,000 guideline. But if it is necessary to reduce the size, some of the unorganized areas in Esquimalt-Saanich could be eliminated.

'HACKING UP'

Coun. Leslie Passmore said the "hacking up" of Saanich federally and provincially should be protested most vigorously.

Council already has objected to the provincial government on the proposed redividing of the present Saanich constituency.

Under the proposal, now before the House, large parts of Saanich would disappear into Victoria (north as far as Swan Lake) and into Oak Bay (up to the east side of Mt. Douglas) and parts of the southwest into Esquimalt.

What is left would be called Saanich and the Islands, extending northwards to the Gulf Islands.

In other matters, council:

- Approved an immediate start on $25,000 of road improvements on Estelline, Pipeline, Dean and Kenmore;

- Approved spending an estimated $4,000 on a spring cleanup with a limitation of nothing higher than a household water tank;

- Rejected a rezoning application by C. A. Ballantyne and Charles Dale for a putting green and golf driving range at Patricia Bay Highway and Haynes Road.

Grits Plan Platform Carpentry

B.C. Liberals will be bringing "fireside politics" to the convention floor when they meet here March 4 and 5.

Plans for the convention call for a series of six group workshops where MP's, MLA's and delegates can thrash out policies and proposed resolutions before they are presented to the delegation at large.

The atmosphere is designed to encourage delegates to express views which they would not otherwise do on the convention floor.

"The resolutions emanating from this convention will probably form the greater part of the Liberal platform in the next provincial election," said president L. C. Jolivet of Vancouver.

Each workshop will be about two hours long and will be comprised of 40 to 50 delegates. Three workshops will be held the Friday morning and three in the afternoon.

"We want every single member attending this convention to have an opportunity to be part of these policy-making decisions," said Mr. Jolivet.

BPW HOLD BANQUET AND COFFEE PARTY

MARK INTERNATIONAL NIGHT

The urgency of sending qualified people to newly emerging countries in order to help them set up education systems, that will develop their human and natural resources was stressed by Dr. Neil Perry, provincial deputy minister of education, Saturday evening. Guest speaker at the International Night Banquet of the Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club, held in the Empress Hotel, Dr. Perry also emphasized the need of expanding facilities in both academic and vocational fields.

Seated at the head table with Dr. and Mrs. Perry were Vogel Hunter, MLA for the Delta riding; Mayor and Mrs. A. W. Toome, Miss Elizabeth Clement, president of the local club; Miss Margaret Clay, Miss Hilda Hesson, Mrs. F. Laughlin, Mrs. J. Waterman, Mrs. R. Hamill, Mrs. Alice Hopkins, state president of the Oregon BPW club; Mrs. Winnifred Young, representing state president of the Washington BPW club; Mrs. Margaret Campbell, North Vancouver; Mrs. Roland Webster, Mrs. B. Miskiman, Miss Ella Brett.

Following Dr. Perry's talk, Miss Eleanor Duff sang several songs, accompanied by Miss Marion Matcham. Later, Mrs. J. Waterman and Mrs. A. Russell conducted the International Candlelight Ceremony. Coffee was then served in the Georgian Lounge.

In charge of the evening's activities was Mrs. Miskiman. Assisting her were Mrs. A. MacMaster, Mrs. E. Evans, Mrs. Kae Fleming, Mrs. E. Forsythe and Miss Brett.

The many out-of-town and local members were again entertained by the Victoria club on Sunday, this time in the form of a coffee party at the War Amputations Hall. The affair was convened by Mrs. F. McClement. She was assisted by Mrs. E. McKinty, Miss Nona Rich, Miss Helen Cruikshanks and Miss Winnifred Ellis.

Presiding at the head table were Mrs. Dorothy Kynaston, president of the Sidney BPW club; Miss Muriel Campbell, president of the Oak Bay BPW Club; Miss Jean Smith and Miss Ellis.

Official Visitor

Miss Muriel Mawer, Seattle, Wash., will be the guest of honor when members of the Victoria Altrusa Club gather in the Strathcona Hotel Mahogany Room for a dinner, Thursday evening.

Miss Mawer is the immediate past-governor of Altrusa International, district 12, Seattle. Following the dinner, which begins at 6:30 p.m., a business meeting will be held at 8 p.m. in the Tartan Shop, 1003 Government Street.

BODEN-HARKNETT VOWS

Couple Travel to Mexico After Marriage Ceremony

Following their wedding in Centennial United Church Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Boden left on honeymoon to Mexico. City and Acapulco.

The bride, the former Marsha Anne Harknett, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Harknett, 2778 Murray Drive. The groom's parents are Mrs. I. M. Watson, 532 Dallas Road, and the late Mr. F. G. Boden.

Rev. S. Parsons officiated at the double-ring ceremony in the church which was decorated with arrangements of chrysanthemums, carnations, daisies and stocks in pink and white tones.

Miss Pat Padden sang "O

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white organza over taffeta. The bodice featured a bateau neckline enhanced by an overlay of silk appliques and sleeves ending in lily points. Lace appliques starred the front of the pleated skirt. A border of white organza banded the train of white lace which swept back from two tiny bridal bows at the shoulders. Her veil of delicate silk illusion net misted from a wedding-ring headpiece of re-embroidered lace. White hyacinths and deep pink Brier Cliffe roses formed her cascade bouquet.

The bride's attendants were dressed alike in floor-length gowns of shocking pink peau de sole. The sleeveless gowns featured pleated skirts with front and back panels. Rosette headpieces in tone were of maline, with veiling of the same material. They carried bouquets of pink carnations and maline. Jewelry was double strands of pearls, gifts of the bride.

Miss Marilyn Bewley was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were the bride's sister, Miss Pam Harknett, and her cousin, Miss Adela Smith.

Bill Smith was best man at the ceremony. Guests were ushered to pews marked with white satin bows by Bill Carlow and Bob Anderson.

At the reception following in the Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club, Ken Smith proposed the toast to his niece's happiness. The bride's mother made the three-tier wedding cake which centred the bride's table. Two silver candelabras with pink candles flanked the centrepiece.

For travelling on honeymoon, the new Mrs. Boden chose a camel hair suit, complemented with a wool hat in tone, brown French kid gloves, and matching brown accessories. An orchid corsage completed the ensemble.

The couple will make their home at 3354 Biscoe Drive.

Larrazabal, Mrs. A. Blood, Mrs. Martha Hago, the Misses Ruth Farris, M. Farris, Jewel Tozier and Ada Engbristan.

Here from Port Angeles were Mrs. P. Brede and Mrs. G. Borko. Attending from Portland, Ore., were Mrs. Margaret Renon and Mrs. Virginia Moore. Washington guests included Mrs. J. Murphy and Mrs. M. Pavsek of Raymond; Mrs. M. Wright, Mrs. M. Buck, Mrs. E. Engler, Mrs. M. Hollinger, Mrs. E. Mower, Miss Helen Raymond and Paul Baren, all of Vancouver; Mrs. Jane Barnes, Tacoma; Mrs. Harriet Johnson, Mrs. A. Kemper and Mrs. E. Gray, all of Bainbridge Island.

Several came from the mainland city of Vancouver. They included Miss Jean Waddley, Mrs. E. Grimmer, Mrs. F. Jordan, Miss M. Peden, Mrs. W. Eckhart, Mrs. T. Chandler, Mrs. Jean Craig, Mrs. J. Carnegie, Mrs. M. Goble, Mrs. K. Mott, Mrs. M. George, Mrs. M. Ramsay, Mrs. B. Faulkner and Mrs. J. McCrossen.

Port Langley visitors were Mrs. A. Hurley, Mrs. W. Nairne, Mrs. N. McCann, Mrs. P. Crook and Miss Pat Gray. From Duncan were Mrs. E. Miller, Mrs. D. Simpson, Mrs. A. Maisey, Miss J. Hall, Miss V. Harris, Mrs. M. Smythe, Mrs. H. Robertson, Mrs. C. Rutan and Mrs. M. Kingston.

Sidney BPW members attending included Mrs. C. Milne, Mrs. M. Smith, Miss J. Newton and Miss May Caldwell.

Clinics for Sex Deviates Seen as Necessary Step

OTTAWA (CP)—A delegation from the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs asked Prime Minister Pearson Monday to set up clinics for persons convicted of criminal offences who appear to be mentally disturbed.

Such persons are "a continuing menace to the public" when released "with no improvement in their condition," the delegation said in their brief.

The group, which speaks for 7,000 members across Canada, wants special clinics established for the treatment of known sex deviates.

Present treatment of sex criminals is "hopelessly inadequate," said the brief, adding that many are released while still "a danger to society and female children in particular."

SEEK SENIOR JOBS

The delegation also requested more women be appointed to senior positions in the public service. The brief says that in 1960, 3,041 males and only 32 females were receiving $10,000 or more annually in the public service.

The distinction becomes sharper at the $14,000 level, reached or surpassed by 576 males and three females. The delegation urged that women be appointed as deputy department heads "when future appointments are to be made."

GIRL GUIDES

Trefoll Guild — The home of Miss P. McDonald was the scene of the recent annual meeting of Trefoll Guild of Greater Victoria (Girl Guides). Elected to office were: President, Mrs. A. Vickers; vice-president, Mrs. K. Parsons; secretary, Mrs. P. R. Lutz; and treasurer, Mrs. H. S. Kathrens. Reports showed that used stamps had been collected in quantity and sent overseas to assist Guides in raising funds. Local fund-raising projects had resulted in donations being made to the Korean relief fund, mental health patients and handicapped children's clinic.

The next meeting will be Thursday at 8 p.m. in the home of Mrs. P. T. Sealy, 1765 Rockland Avenue. It will be open to former Guides and Guides.

BEADS OF CRYSTAL ...

Delicate Embroidery Enhances Bridal Gown

Crystal beads starred the embroidered lace bodice of the gown worn by Annabelle Mary Brown when she became the bride of Burton Leslie Anthony Trask in Christ the King Chapel, HMCS Naden, Saturday evening.

Her floor-length gown was of white silk tulle and styled with a slim skirt. Lace roses at the shoulders held her full-length silk train. Her veil misted to shoulder-length from a tiara of stephanotis. Johanna Hill roses and stephanotis formed her crescent bouquet, which featured cascading lovers' knots.

Fr. Charles Murphy officiated at the nuptial mass ceremony, uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Robert Brown, 649 Admirals Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Leslie Trask, St. John's, Nfld. Mr. Brown gave his daughter in marriage.

Mrs. Robert Cody was organist in the church, which was decorated with daffodils and pussy willows.

Maid of honor Miss Koljeet Deenshaw wore a gown of gold brocade, styled with a sheath skirt. The bodice featured short sleeves and a scoop neckline. She carried a bouquet of red roses and carnations.

The Misses Margaret and Ellen MacGregor were bridesmaids for their cousin. They were dressed alike in gowns of shocking pink peau de sole. Unpressed pleats highlighted the waistlines of the slim skirts. Their bouquets were of pink roses and carnations.

Michael Ernest Trask, St. John's, was best man for his brother. Guests were ushered by the bride's brothers, Patrick and John Brown.

At the reception following in the home of the bride's parents, the newlyweds cut a three-tier wedding cake which was made by the bride's mother. Robert Cody proposed the toast to the bride.

The bride's choice for traveling on honeymoon to Seattle was a gold and green tweed suit, complemented by a gold hat and black accessories.

The couple will make their home in Richmond, B.C.

'SCREAMING ANGER'

Lego Pickets

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) —

A 23-year-old unemployed ex-marine was charged with assault with intent to murder today in the shooting of five Negro civil rights pickets outside a supermarket Monday night.

Police said Emory Warren

McGowan claimed the Negroes stopped his car outside the supermarket, began rocking it and tried to pull him out.

Det. Capt. J. M. McDowell said McGowan, screaming with anger, apparently fired a full clip of eight shots from a 32-calibre automatic pistol. None of the Negroes was seriously hurt.

Negroes, who returned again today to picket the supermarket, denied anyone tried to drag McGowan from his car.

A blonde riding with him at the time of the shooting was questioned by police and sent home.

A crowd of about 100 Negroes gathered outside the Liberty supermarket after the shooting, but squads of shotgun-armed police maintained order.

We Wanted Money, Murder Trial Told

VANCOUVER (CP) — An

assize court jury was told here

Monday that two North Vancouver youths charged with capital murder set out the night of Aug.

28 to "roll" a man to get money for a movie.

Kenneth Calli and Douglas

Shoemaker are on trial for the beating death of Nicholas Williamson, who was clubbed with a piece of beachwood and robbed at Stanley Park in the city's west end.

Warren Delaney, a crown

witness, told Mr. Justice T. A.

Dohm and a 12-man jury that he, Calli and Shoemaker met in the early evening of Aug. 28 and decided to go to a movie, but did not have sufficient funds.

Mr. Delaney said it was decided they would go to Stanley Park and raise the money by "rolling" somebody in the area. The plan was, he testified, that he would walk ahead, locate somebody, then let the others know.

He emphasized there was no plan of violence and that after he parted company with the two youths, he doubled back and went to Calli's residence, where he was staying.

NEXT MORNING

Mr. Delaney said Calli arrived home early the next morning and told him "Doug clubbed some guy in Stanley Park."

They discovered the next day that Mr. Williamson had died during the night.

The trial continues.

Canadians Believe
Those 'American Lies'

TORONTO (UPI) — A prominent Canadian author Saturday accused the United States government of committing mass murder in Viet Nam and "deliberately and consistently"

lying about it to their own people and to the world.

Farley Mowat's speech to a day-long conference on Canada's role in Viet Nam was the bitest of five delivered before an overflow audience of about 400 which jammed into a small down town hall.

The conference was sponsored by eight peace groups, including

YOUR HEALTH

Illness Resulting From Indecision

By Dr. WALTER ALVAREZ

Many of the nervous women I see appear to be ill largely because they cannot quickly make up their minds about their problems. In the worst case I ever saw, the poor woman could not make up her mind whether to put on her right stocking first, or the left stocking first. She couldn't make up her mind which dress to put on for the day. Her fine husband had to leave her, and she wound up as a recluse—living alone.

Alvarez

Commonly a woman like this is ill because she can't make up her mind about taking the definite step of divorcing an unloved and much disliked husband. I usually help these women immediately by saying, "Look; here on my desk is an imaginary button; you press that and you'll be back from Reno with your little decree in your hand." And they won't press my imaginary button. Why?

Usually because they still have a little love left for the man, or they realize that he hasn't enough money to maintain two homes, or they fear that he might take to drink, or they feel that they must stay until their children are educated. But so long as they can't make the irrevocable decision, they remain ill.

The worst case of this type I ever saw was that of a handsome woman, who in her thirties, for four years had run a steady fever of a degree and a half, and had had an almost constant abdominal pain. It was so bad that on four occasions she was operated on.

When I learned that nothing wrong had been found, I kept asking until I learned that when the illness started, she had just married, and she and her husband found themselves incompatible. Then the question arose, should she get a divorce?

It was because she could not make up her mind that she was ill. The day her family got her to start divorce proceedings, she was well.

I often tell these women of the time when I was in a leucotomy bank chatting with the bank president, who was a friend of mine. The phone rang and it was the farm mortgage expert of the bank who was reporting that a certain farmer had decamped and disappeared, leaving his mortgage unpaid and the farm in bad shape.

The banker asked, "How much would it cost to put the farm in good enough condition again so that we could lease it, and perhaps someday get our money back?" When he heard how much this would cost he immediately said, "No, that is too much; get rid of the farm for whatever you can get, and we'll take our loss." And then he turned cheerfully to chat with me.

I was pretty sure that he would never again think about the problem of that farm. And ever since that day I have thought how different it might be for his wife if she had to try to decide which of two kitchen aprons she should buy. And if she did decide, she would take the apron back.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Frank Langrell, age 12, of St. Catharines, Ont., Canada, for his question:

Where do they get mercury for thermometers?

A word of caution before we even think about this wonderful stuff—liquid mercury is harmful to the skin, and all the compounds of mercury and other elements are to some degree poisonous, even though several are used in medicines. A drop of liquid mercury from, say, a broken thermometer, is full of lively antics and is very tempting. But only a rash person or some clunk who flunked his chemistry dares to poke it with a bare finger. The handling of mercury compounds should be guided by experts.

The lively metal has been known for ages and goodness knows how many of our ancestors were harmed by it before its unfriendly nature was known. The Spanish claim to have been extracting mercury from their massive ore deposit at Almaden since 800 B.C. The ore is cinnabar, a rocky compound of mercury and sulphur. The earth's crust supplies some 24 different ores of mercury, but the richest and the most commonly used is cinnabar. It is worth mining although only 10 pounds of mercury is refined from a ton of ore.

Mineral in Glassy Crystals

Most cinnabar is rusty colored rock, ranging from bright coral to dark chestnut and often streaked with vermilion. The handsome mineral also occurs in flat, glassy crystals. It is a compound of mercury and sulphur, and to extract the mercury the nature of these two elements must be kept in mind. Mercury boils and changes to gas at 670 degrees Fahrenheit, but sulphur does not become gaseous until the temperature reaches 832 degrees.

The logical plan, then, is to roast the ore to 670 degrees at which point the mercury becomes a gas and separates from its sulphur partner. The rosy, red cinnabar is put into retorts and heated with blasts of hot air. The mercury gas is led

The Wonderful World of Animals

By DR. FRANK MILLER

Questions often arise concerning sweets for dogs, i.e.: Is candy harmful? Does sugar cause worms? Can my dog have a chocolate for dessert? Sugar is an acceptable source of energy for many animals, including the dog. Nor is it any more likely to cause worms in dogs than it is, say, in humans. (Worms come from other worms, not from sugar or other foods.) However, candy for dogs is basically undesirable for the same reasons it may prove troublesome in the human diet. A dog quickly acquires a sweet tooth and may hold out for goodies that dull his appetite for a balanced diet. Sweets for dessert for corpulent canines are just additional calories they can do without. Chocolate is particularly inadvisable as dogs are often allergic to it with symptoms ranging from bowel upsets to skin rash.

DEAR T.E.: Hungry turtles do eat fish, but especially those dead or dying. Turtles catch, and eat, so few healthy fish they are of little concern to fishermen. (Except they frequently fall for a baited hook.)

HAPPY VALENTINE DAY GIVES AWAY GROCERIES

WOOTTON, England (AP)—A grocer named Valentine Day won $196,000—all tax free—in Britain's soccer pool today and promptly announced a free week's supply of groceries for all his customers.

Otherwise, he said, he'll continue business as usual.

Day, 54, explained:

"I have always promised my customers that if ever I won on the pool I would give them a week's supply."

"But this is not going to change my way of life. I shall be starting work at 6:30 tomorrow morning and opening up at the usual time."

"But I might treat myself to a holiday."

Day won the prize by correctly predicting the games in last Saturday's British soccer games. There were only eight ties altogether—and he forecast all of them.

Two Charged In Bank Raid

Two men arrested Monday in Vancouver in connection with a $19,342 robbery of a branch of the Bank of Montreal here appeared in central court in Victoria today.

Charged with the Friday night armed robbery of the Richmond and Fort branch are William Braumberger, 45 and Henry Gable, 46.

Both are from Vancouver. They were arrested by city detectives Lorne Johnson and Jack Mason.

The city officers and members of Vancouver City police arrested the pair in Braumberger's home in the Grandview district of Vancouver.

Both suspects were remanded to March 1.

Gable asked a week-long remand to consider his election on the charge of armed robbery. Braumberger had his election options explained three times before he chose trial by judge and jury.

Magistrate William Ostler remanded him to set a date for a preliminary hearing.

NO BAIL ASKED

Neither man asked bail be fixed.

Meanwhile, police have mounted a Canada-wide search for two others for whom warrants were issued Monday.

Police said the other men sought in connection with the holdup are Harold Robinson Coulter, 47, and Gordon Francis Duck, 23.

Coulter is described as five feet, five inches, 150 pounds and has dark hair.

Duck is five feet, nine inches, about 175 pounds and has brown hair, police said.

They are both from eastern Canada.

STATEMENTS

Both city Police Chief J. F. Gregory and Insp. William Andrews, who is in charge of the investigation, today issued statements praising city, Island and mainland police forces who assisted in the case.

The inspector, who has been in police work 25 years, said he had "never seen such co-operation like this in all my life."

"There was amazing esprit de corps," he said.

New Plea By Wilson For Talks

MOSCOW (Reuters)—British Prime Minister Wilson appealed to Russian leaders today to help get Viet Nam talks started immediately and without preconditions.

"We ask you to talk with us so those concerned can sit round a table now, while there is time and without preconditions," he said at a Kremlin lunch.

Russia's top leaders, including Communist leader Leonid Brezhnev and Premier Kosygin, listened.

On nuclear weapons for West Germany, Wilson promised them:

"No government of which I am ever the head in our country will ever agree to a German finger being on the nuclear trigger."

Wilson spoke soon after a discussion of nearly two hours with Kosygin.

Informal sources said the meeting—their first since the British prime minister arrived here Monday for a four-day visit—showed no change in the Soviet position on Viet Nam.

In his luncheon speech, Wilson said he and Kosygin agreed the Viet Nam problem defied solution by military means.

"There must be a political solution in the interests of the people of Viet Nam... whose voice must be heard," he said, according to British officials.

The comment raised speculation whether Wilson was urging that the Viet Cong should be heard at an eventual peace conference.

Wilson pleaded for frank talk in strong language about differences between Britain and Russia.

"We have a duty to identify those issues where we do not agree and an even greater responsibility to try to identify those areas where we can agree."

He said that on the Viet Nam issue both sides agreed the war was tragic, and that every day it brought unnecessary suffering from people of a country "from whom peace has been a stranger for many years."

Both agreed there was great danger of the spread of war in Asia, particularly while the fighting continued to cast a cloud on East-West relations.

Wilson said the problem of nuclear non-proliferation was

Overseas Bases Also Cut Back

LONDON (UPI)—Britain announced today it will cut back the role of the navy's aircraft carriers and build its air forces around American F-4A supersonic bombers in a controversial decision that caused the resignation of both the civilian and military chiefs of the Royal Navy.

The fleet air arm—the navy's carrier-based force—will be phased out in the 1970s along with certain foreign bases in favor of land-based aircraft capable of rapid, long-distance operations.

The decision was announced by the Labor government in a special position paper on defence presented today in Parliament.

The white paper also said Britain regarded continuation of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization as vital to Europe's defence.

The paper said there will be no wholesale British retreats from global commitments despite the cut-back in defence expenditures.

But the decision, prompted by both strategic and monetary considerations, rocked the top echelons of the navy. The First Sea Lord, Admiral Sir David Luce, today joined his civilian chief, Navy Minister Christopher Mayhew, in announcing his resignation in protest to the action.

Mayhew quit on Saturday, saying the new defence budget was "dangerously mistaken."

Aviation circles also unhappy

Luce timed his resignation with the actual announcement of the carrier-scuttling budget.

Aviation circles also were unhappy about the planned purchase of 50 of the "swing-wing" American bombers at the expense of a junked British design, the TSR2, and possible British-French combinations.

Britain pledged to maintain her commitments in the Far East and South Asia but will cut her forces in the Mediterranean and pull out of Aden when South Arabia becomes independent in 1968.

Forces will be kept at the existing level in Germany "provided some means is found for meeting the foreign exchange costs of these forces."

Garrisons will be withdrawn from British Guiana and southern African territories shortly.

The government's plans put these three basic restrictions on military commitments outside Europe:

● Britain will "not undertake major operations of war except in co-operation with allies."

● No assistance to other countries unless they provide Britain with "the facilities we need to make such assistance effective in time."

● "No attempt to maintain

India Rejects Bid For Viet Support

NEW DELHI (AP)—India's prime minister, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, disclosed in Parliament today that Vice-President Hubert Humphrey asked her government to support U.S. policy in Viet Nam, but she declined because of India's non-aligned position.

Mrs. Gandhi said she told Humphrey, who visited New Delhi last week, that India's view of the Viet Nam war is based on its position as a non-aligned country and as chairman of the International Control Commission for Viet Nam.

Canada and Poland are the other ICC members.

Humphrey "appreciated" India's attitude and expressed the hope this country would "do everything possible to facilitate a peaceful solution of the problem," Mrs. Gandhi said.

Members of Parliament had asked if Humphrey's announcement of a new $100,000,000 aid to India was tied to any secret assurances from Mrs. Gandhi on India's foreign or domestic policy.

"We will not be forced into taking any position not consistent with our national interest," Mrs. Gandhi said.

Times News Service

LONDON — The London Daily Mirror, which is running a literary competition for children, Monday printed eight-year-old Veronica Simmonds' daydream on what she would do "if I were queen."

"I would get up at nine o'clock in the morning after breakfasting in bed," she wrote.

"I would dress in my long palace gown and put on my crown. I would then telephone the prime minister and ask him how England was getting on. I would give him my advice and orders.

"This would keep me busy until lunch time... lunch would consist mostly of fish and chips and bread and butter with tomato ketchup.

"After lunch I would sit on my throne and read my book on rabbits... when tea was over I would change my crown for a different one. I would set on my throne again and read until dinner time. I would have salad with garlic and red wine for dinner.

"Later I would get my servants to prepare my bed and to put in a hot water bottle. I would watch the television for a little while and then I would go to bed after the palace chaplain had said prayers."

PARIS — Two women safecrackers gave themselves up to police here because their two male partners made them work too hard and gave them too little of the proceeds.

MONTAUBAN, France — A man was jailed here for three months for stealing a cask, curate's hat and incense vessel. He said he wanted to say private mass for the return of his wife, who had left him.

LONDON — Thousands of Canadian war veterans, now perhaps a bit thick in the middle and thin on top, dream occasionally of an English pub where they whooped it up as dashing young soldiers.

Two Torontoians, Keith McCord, 45, and David Shiriff, 43, took the dream one step further — they came back and bought the pub.

Today they are engaged in making plans for the future of the pub, the 13th century Crown Inn at Chiddingfold, Surrey, which will continue to operate under a resident manager.

Once a rest house for pilgrims on their way to Canterbury, the Crown was advertised for sale in a British magazine last September, catching the eye of McCord and Shiriff, who were tank captains in the Ontario Regiment during their wartime visits.

NEW DELHI, India — A New Delhi man complained that it took six weeks for a telegram he had sent to Secunderabad to be delivered. An investigation was ordered. It disclosed that the delay was caused by a telegraph agency investigation to determine if it had an office in Secunderabad.

MOSCOW — Soviet cosmonauts have been carrying a "fear meter," the magazine Ogonyok reported Sunday.

The instrument, the weekly magazine said, determines "the psychic state of a man to a certain degree, and registers the slightest nervousness or lack of confidence."

The fear meter, so called by the cosmonauts themselves, was first tried out on Andrian Nikolayev and Pavel Popovich in 1962. It showed both of them nervous before the launching, but with the nervousness disappearing once they were up and experiencing weightlessness.

Collision Rumored
Air Disaster Cause

FRANKFURT (AP) — The influential West German newspaper Frankfurter Allgemeine says in an editorial that authorities and international airlines are hushing up the possible role of an Italian jet fighter in the Jan. 24 crash of an Indian airliner on Mont Blanc, which claimed 117 lives.

Geneva airport authorities denied any Italian plane was involved.

Under the heading A Veil of Secrecy, the newspaper says that "apparently there is a solidarity between the airlines not to mention that the disaster could result from a collision with an Italian jet fighter."

"Why have not official authorities announced yet that since the same minute that the Boeing 707 of Air India disappeared from the Geneva radar screens an Italian jet fighter is missing in the same area? Who has an interest in hushing up such evidence?"

The newspaper says a pre-crash collision between the Italian jet and the Indian airliner was "most probable."

It says officials of several airlines in Frankfurt and London have insisted that a collision caused the crash.

In Geneva, airport authorities said the collision report was completely untrue. It said no Italian or other plane was missing that day. They said an Italian military plane was in the area at the time of the crash, but was not involved since it gave the first report of the crash site.

'Phoney Vote Issue
Sought by Bennett'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Liberal leader Ray Perrault charged Monday that Premier Bennett is making a deliberate attempt to create a phoney election issue.

"This is the third and I'm sure, the last session of the 27th legislature," he told a crowd of about 75 at a meeting of the Vancouver Quadra Liberal Association.

"The premier is seeking desperately to create an election issue," he said.

Perrault said later he thinks Mr. Bennett may use redistribution as a key issue in the campaign. The premier might charge the opposition with attempting to thwart development of the northern part of the province by fighting the government's redistribution plans.

The local NDP wants to see two private insurance spokesmen debate the controversial issue against NDP MLA William Hartley, a co-op insurance representative, and E. P. O'Neil, secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labour.

The panel meeting will be at 8 p.m. in the Union Centre auditorium on Quadra.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Overnight temperatures in B.C. ranged from 12 above at Kimberley under clear skies to 56 at Tofino the result of overcast conditions and brisk southeasterly winds. Early morning readings were in the low 40s in the Cariboo and the low 50s along the north coast. The mild weather continued today as another weather disturbance approaches the province from the southwest. Rain is expected in coastal regions from this system but only a few showers are forecast for the northern interior as it crosses that area tonight. Increasing cloud will mark the passage of this system over the Kootenays Wednesday.

DENIS

"Raymond indicated to me that he himself was going to get something out of it though he didn't indicate amounts," Mr. Lamontagne said.

He had earlier said that at the stage of a July 14 meeting with Denis no one else had been mentioned as a recipient of money. This had been suggested at a later stage.

REFUSED OFFER

Mr. Lamontagne testified that he refused immediately when Denis informed him of the $30,000 offer in the Rivard bail affair.

He said that during his conversation with Denis he was trying to learn "out of curiosity" who was behind the offer.

"He told me four persons were involved but I got only one name—Gelin."

Mr. Lamontagne said Denis, at that time executive assistant to—then immigration minister Rene Tremblay, told him of the offer in Mr. Tremblay's office shortly after the minister had left the room.

"He said that I was being offered $30,000 to withdraw objection to Rivard's getting out on bail," Mr. Lamontagne said.

Mr. Lamontagne was lawyer for the United States government which was trying to extradite Rivard to the United States for trial.

Denis, 33-year-old lawyer, is being tried before county court Judge Frank Costello on a charge of corruptly offering the sum of money to Mr. Lamontagne to have him stop opposition to bail for Rivard.

corps among the other forces working with us on this," he added.

The holdup occurred about two minutes before the bank's Friday 6 p.m. closing.

Three men burst into the branch carrying cut-down rifles and told employees and customers to "freeze."

One man stood at the door, another in the centre of the branch while a third scooped money from tellers' tills.

ROADBLOCKS

The robbery took only three minutes and the robbers sped away eluding police roadblocks.

Police assume a fourth man drove the get-away vehicle.

not just a problem of Germany. "In this year of 1966 I believe we could be near the point of return," he said.

There were countries in the Middle East, Asia and elsewhere who might feel it necessary to acquire nuclear weapons, he said, and if that happened, the spread of nuclear arms would begin to get too big to control.

When he arrived Monday Wilson described his talks with Kozyn as a search for East-West "points of contact."

LONDON (UPI)—White-ruled South Africa will have a black African state on its borders next fall when Bechuanaland becomes an independent republic called Botswana. Bechuanaland, a British Protectorate, will be granted independence as a republic Sept. 30 under an agreement signed Monday night by Colonial Secretary Lord Longford and Bechuanaland Prime Minister Seretse Khama.

Direct Talks With Cabinet
Under Attack

Any changes in Metropolitan Health Board organization should have local approval before becoming a provincial concern.

This resolution was passed by Oak Bay council Monday. It was believed aimed at Reeve R. Gordon Lee of Central Saanich. Proposals to the provincial health department for changes in cost-sharing formulas have been attributed to him.

Reeve Lee has denied he is attempting to establish direct liaison with the provincial government.

The Oak Bay resolution states that because the health board was established between the municipal council and school board they should be consulted first regarding any changes in its structure.

Council approved a recommendation that $500 be replaced in the recreation commission budget to provide a supervisor and equipment at Quimper Park.

The $500 was earlier deleted from the budget as an economy measure.

The recreation commission stressed its urgency and offered to spend $1,500 to provide sanitary facilities if council would replace the $500.

In other business council:

● Voted to take "no independent action" in the squabble over hiring a United States firm to stage centennial celebrations. The matter was referred to the Centennial Society.

● Filed a request for funds from the Oak Bay Senior Secondary School band for a centennial concert tour. "This is another item that has been bounced around in the centennial whirlpool," said Reeve Alan Cox.

● Referred to the estimates committee, the police budget for 1966.

● Filed a Vancouver Island Building and Construction Council resolution in support of a new cost-sharing formula between the province and municipalities.

● Referred to the Inter-municipal Committee a Silver Threads Service brief on the need for low-rent housing for senior citizens.

● Expressed disagreement with the Sport's Council of Greater Victoria's plan for supervision of the Centennial Stadium at the University of Victoria.

● Received a report on the Victoria Spring Flower Festival which is to be held April 2 to 10.

● Granted permission for a bottle drive and two tag days.

Troops Pull Back

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Indian and Pakistani troops have begun a full-scale withdrawal from all areas they occupied during last September's border war, official sources said Saturday. Forces of both sides are due by Feb. 25 to be back inside their own frontiers.

since the Second World War, with defence expenditures now running about 6.5 per cent of the gross national product compared with 6.8 per cent in 1965-66.

The white paper said Britain will buy the 50 F-111 nuclear-capable bombers at $5.95 million each for total outlay of $294 million.

TEN ORDERED NOW

The first 10 will be ordered immediately and the remainder in 1967.

The American aircraft will "bridge the gap" between present Royal Air Force equipment and the Anglo-French "swing wing" Jaguar bomber due in the mid 1970's.

The fleet air arm will be phased out slowly but extended into the 1970's for as long as present carrier equipment lasts.

The 11-year old, 43,340-ton carrier Ark Royal will be refitted but no new flat-tops will be built. Naval Phantom aircraft will continue to be purchased.

To offset the diminishing carrier force the navy will be provided with a fleet of new "Type 82" guided-missile destroyers to work with its nuclear-powered Polaris submarines and hunter-killer submarines.

The white paper said experience showed there was little likelihood of a deliberate war in Europe if the aggressor feared it might lead to a nuclear response.

There was little point in building up conventional arms in Europe, the paper said, but it warned if nuclear weapons ever were used in Europe the conflict could escalate until the whole of America's nuclear forces were engaged.

'English Students Subsidized'

QUEBEC (CP)—Raymond Roberge, president of Jeunes Chambres de Commerce du Canada Français, said Monday it makes no economic sense for Quebec to pay for education of English-speaking students "who are richer than we" and who come from and will return to places outside the province.

Speaking at a regional meeting of the JCCF—French Canada's Junior Chamber of Commerce—Mr. Roberge was referring to a protest by McGill University over provincial grants made public last week. The McGill increase was the lowest among the province's six universities.

Mr. Roberge said 21,000 of the 31,000 members of the McGill Graduate Society live outside Quebec.

He said that until now provincial grants have favored English-speaking universities over the French-speaking and he called on the provincial government to do everything within its power to make French the working language in Quebec.

Minister Talks
B.C. Election

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell Monday made the strongest hint of the season that a provincial election is in sight.

He accused the opposition in budget speech debate of "obstruction upon obstruction," and said "ridicule" of the homeowner grant would be an issue to be taken "to the people."

He accused the opposition of being against the homeowner grant and of killing a motion he introduced last week to have a municipal affairs committee study air pollution.

Mr. Campbell was heckled by opposition leader Robert Strachan and John Squire (NDP—Alberni) when he referred to how Nanaimo is affected by the homeowner grant.

The minister said 50 per cent of Nanaimo homeowners pay less than $100 in taxes because of the grant.

Mr. Strachan said other charges such as for sewers not appearing on the tax bill should be included before deducting the grant. Mr. Squire called across the floor:

"How much do the others pay?"

Mr. Campbell then said loudly:

"Let the people of British Columbia take note of the ridicule of the members of the opposition."

"This government intends to override that ridicule... This government intends to take that issue to the people of the province of British Columbia."

Ferry Too Small

POWELL RIVER — The Texada Island Chamber of Commerce has asked the provincial highways department to replace the Texada-Powell ferry with a larger, more modern vessel. The present ship is limited to six passenger cars, with large trucks excluded.

Lesage's Gentle Reminder To the Quebec 'Minority'

QUEBEC CITY — Quebec has its minority too. But Quebec's is not a minority like the others.

Although 80 per cent of Quebec's population is French-speaking, the English-speaking have enjoyed many of the benefits of a majority.

English has a place in Quebec far out of proportion with the number of English-speaking people, although perhaps not out of proportion with their economic strength.

Everyone in Quebec knows that this has to change.

If French-Canadians are not to go on forever in what one English-speaking Montrealer calls "the position of first-generation immigrants," French must become the dominant language in the province in business and industry, as well as in politics where it already prevails.

How this change is to come about is a much-debated question. Official bilingualism has been proposed and short of that, some sort of legal support of priority for French.

Until last week, Premier Jean Lesage had kept pretty well clear of the subject, except for occasionally tossing off a remark like, "How do you expect to make a cosmopolitan city like Montreal unilingual?"

But this week, in the most mild and gentle of speeches, Mr. Lesage reminded the minority that the French-speaking in Quebec were the majority.

PREMIER LESAGE
... 'rightful place'

The speech was, first of all, one of reassurance.

It was given before a Jewish audience, the brotherhood of Temple Emanu-El, at Montreal.

Some members of Montreal's large Jewish community have been made uneasy by the virulent form that nationalism has taken among a few small groups of extremists.

Mr. Lesage assured his audience that the deep and powerful movement in Quebec today "is not directed against anyone. It comes from the firm determination of French-speaking Canadians to take their rightful place, but it has no racial overtones whatsoever."

"This, actually, has surprised more than one foreign observer who would normally have expected that, in becoming self-reliant, our people, most of whom are French-speaking, might have easily slipped into religious or racial intolerance. Yet nothing of the sort has happened."

By STAN MCDOWELL
Times Quebec Correspondent

But with that said, Mr. Lesage also had this to say: "While the French-speaking people are obviously — and I might even say naturally — providing the social driving force in Quebec today, it does not follow that the other ethnic groups should stand aloof from the movement they are witnessing, let alone fight against it. On the contrary, they should support it."

"We are trying to take our rightful place in Canada; we are also moving into the future, calling upon all our energy and transforming Quebec in the process."

"The Quebec of tomorrow will not be a closed society, drawn in upon itself, nor will it be limited in its outlook. There will be plenty of room for all those who, although not necessarily members of the French-speaking community, are willing to understand, support and co-operate with that community."

"That room is available now; in the months and years to come, all non-French-speaking Quebecers will be given ample opportunity to occupy it. The spirit of understanding which most of them are showing today makes me confident that they will join us to help reach the one major objective which contains all the others: the building in Quebec of a new society inspired by a profoundly democratic spirit and based on a deep respect for the human being."

Elsewhere in the speech Mr. Lesage said that French-speaking Canadians "expect their motivation to be understood and not to be opposed for the sole purpose of stubbornly hanging on to acquired privileges no longer justified."

It was all deft and tactful. But it made some points: The French-speaking community is the vital force of the new Quebec.

There will be room in the Quebec of the future for those non-members of the French-speaking community who support that community.

Acquired privileges can lose their justification. Mr. Lesage did not directly say anything about giving some form of support or priority to the French language in Quebec.

But what Mr. Lesage often says at a press conference, when a question arises on which he is not yet ready to make a firm pronouncement, is "You can draw your own conclusions."

Oxford's Colleges Under Fierce Attack

By KARL E. MEYER

LONDON — A world-famous Oxford College has been sternly arraigned in an article appearing in Encounter magazine for floundering "like a golden whale in the shallows of reform."

Entitled "Crisis at All Souls," the article reads like a chapter from a C. P. Snow novel and is the latest in a series of attacks that seem to presage wholesale change in Oxford's medieval ways.

The author is David Cauter, 29, who recently resigned his All Souls fellowship in protest, the first such gesture, it is said, since 1453. A novelist and historian of French Communism, Cauter is due to teach at New York University next fall.

Scandalized

Some at Oxford are scandalized by Cauter's disclosure of the intimate financial arrangements of the university's only college without students. "For more than 10 years," Cauter asserts, "All Souls has refused or failed to spend its enormous revenues."

In 1963, this surplus amounted to $106,400 according to Cauter, who had advocated that the college agree to take in graduate students, a proposal that was ultimately rejected in favor of a plan to provide for visiting fellows.

Cauter's version of events, and his assessment of their importance, is subject to dispute among Oxonians. But few deny that Oxford as a whole is under an increasingly heavy barrage of criticism from within and without.

In 1963, the influential Robbins Report on Higher Education alluded unhappily to the "general obscurity" of the financial and administrative arrangements at both Oxford and Cambridge, which were deemed "incompatible" with their dependence on public funds.

A year later, Oxford itself responded to the criticism by setting up a commission to restudy the entire structure of a university in which some two score colleges remain jealously independent.

The commission is headed by Lord Franks, provost of Worcester College and former British ambassador to the United States. The report is expected to be released this spring, probably around Easter.

For two years, the Franks commission has been conducting hearings notable for the fiercely self-critical spirit evidenced in testimony.

Prof. C. D. Darlington, for example, found it inherent in the Oxford college system to "balk change, to favor stability and to tolerate stagnation." A Magdalen College botanist, Darlington said the colleges were "a farce and a fraud" as a means of graduate research.

Even so, testimony like this failed to reassure angry undergraduates. Oxford Opinion, a student magazine, said of Lord Franks:

Human Nature

"He is fighting against human nature in wanting the rich colleges to subsidize the poor, lecturers to entertain their listeners rather than themselves, tutors to spend more time on their pupils and less on lucrative sidelines."

"The real trouble is that the younger members of the university are reluctant to spoil the leisurely existence that awaits them."

The two most frequent, voiced complaints — obscurity about financial arrangements and slowness in reaching decisions — are major points in Cauter's indictment of All Souls.

SMITH VERSUS SMITH

By COLIN LEGUM

LONDON — Two Rhodesian editors have set the rebel prime minister, Mr. Ian Smith, one of the most difficult decisions he has had to make since he illegally declared Rhodesia independent just over three months ago.

Mr. Ian Smith must now decide whether to prosecute Mr. Malcolm Smith, editor of the Rhodesian Herald, and Mr. Sidney Swadell, editor of the Bulawayo Chronicle, for refusing to obey his censorship laws. These laws require them, inter alia, to leave no blank spaces in their newspapers to show where the censor has been at work.

Up to now the editors had observed the instructions of the censor because he had operated under the authority of Emergency Regulations legally applied by governor Sir Humphrey Gibbs before Rhodesia was taken into illegal independence.

State Ended

But the legal State of Emergency ended last week. The new regulations passed by Mr. Smith's rebel regime do not have the governor's authority. Therefore the editors are defying the authority of the rebel regime.

If action is taken against them the editors will at once apply to the courts for redress. And that is the kernel of Mr. Ian Smith's dilemma.

He can be fairly sure that Rhodesia's nine high court judges, presided over by Sir Hugh Beadle, will operate the law as loyal subjects of the British Crown to whom they owe their allegiance. The law of the Crown is the 1961 Constitution which was abrogated by the Smith rebellion and replaced by the rebels' 1965 Constitution.

This, then, is Mr. Ian Smith's dilemma. If he now orders legal action to be taken against Malcolm Smith and Sidney Swadell he precipitates the long-threatened clash between the courts and the regime.

Paradox of the Moscow Authors' Trial: It May Advance Soviet Liberalization

By VICTOR ZORZA
The Manchester Guardian

LONDON — The trial of Russian authors Andrei Sinyavsky and Yuli Daniel in Moscow will in the wholeness of time prove to have been a notable advance in the liberalization of the Soviet union, paradoxical as that may be.

There can be no doubt that the protests by many western Communist parties must have greatly upset the Soviet leaders. The first Soviet press reactions to the protests have sought to minimize them, but western Communists know that their persistence has been rewarded by success in the past, and they may be expected to go on pressing for justice in this case too.

Western Reds Protested Book

Protests by western Communist parties against the publication of a crudely anti-semitic book in the Ukraine were also at first minimized in the Soviet press. But in the end the book was withdrawn, and this proved to be the beginning of a slow but firm development away from official anti-semitism in Russia in the past year or so. One reason why this pressure against Soviet anti-semitism proved so successful was the personal engagement of many Jewish Communists in the West in the campaign to bring the Kremlin to its senses.

Kremlin Can't Ignore Group

One reason why the Communist parties in the West are now up in arms about the Moscow verdict against Sinyavsky and Yuli is to be found in their fear that their own standing will be adversely affected thereby and that such sympathizers as they might have hoped to recruit, especially among the intellectuals, will be repelled. The Kremlin cannot really ignore the group of Communist leaders in the West, especially at a time when it needs their good will in fighting off the Chinese political menace in the East. It will therefore have to make some concessions to their views by allowing the ferocity of the sentences to be moderated.

But, as in the case of the anti-semitic book, the main effects will show itself in the longer term. If the Soviet leaders have to give way to protests this time, they will try to avoid a similar predicament in the future, and that can only be done in two ways. Either they return to the Stalinist practice of completely secret trials — which, in present circumstances, could not remain secret for long, and would in the end cause them even greater political difficulty — or they allow the rule of the law to slowly to assert itself, so that in the end any supposed transgressors against it can be tried in full view of the world, and so that, as western Communists are demanding even now, justice can be seen to be done.

Rule of Law Leaders Aided

In this way the trial will have proved to be of great help to the many Soviet leaders who have been pressing in recent years for the establishment of the rule of law. They have had some notable successes, but what they needed above all was some dramatic case that would prove to the powers that be that the reformers were right, and the conservatives wrong.

Only last month the government paper Izvestia printed an article about the work of Soviet courts which condemned in virtually every paragraph the methods that were to be used shortly in the trial of Sinyavsky and Daniel on charges of publishing anti-Soviet literature outside Russia. Its homily was pegged to the case of a family whose house, not far from Moscow, had been confiscated by a local court on the grounds that it had been built out of unearned income — although the defendants had documents to prove that they had earned the money.

"You have to take into account the time when the case was tried," the state prosecutor who handled it explained to the Izvestia correspondent. "Why, don't you remember what things were like then?"

Drive Against Black Market

He was not referring to the "era of illegality" under Stalin, as it is sometimes called in the Soviet press, but to a much more recent campaign against alleged "speculators" who were supposed to have made money out of the black market.

A decree was issued under which houses acquired from "unearned income" could be confiscated, but this, recalls the Izvestia correspondent, was regarded by certain people as imposing on them a duty to suspect everybody. In the case he describes, "it was necessary to find that the house had been built out of unearned income," and the local authority had therefore determined that it cost twice as much to build as the owners claimed — and the owners were unable to show where they had acquired so much money.

'Illegality' Not Made Legal

But the decree, Izvestia now comments, "Never made illegality legal." The illegality was perpetrated "independently," it says, by those who allowed themselves to be swept off their feet by the raging passions of the campaign against speculators. What Izvestia does not say is that its own columns, together with those of the other newspapers, were the main instruments of that campaign — just as much in the past week or two they led the campaign against the two writers.

Izvestia now ascribes the illegal prosecution of house owners to the "faceless pressure" exerted on the court by something that masqueraded as public opinion, but all its readers will know that both the decree and the campaign against the house owners had originated in the highest party quarters, as did the instructions to the court, and to the press, on the handling of the Sinyavsky-Daniel trial. (The trial concluded last week with Sinyavsky and Daniel both receiving sentences to imprisonment at hard labor.)

In what is probably the most outspoken condemnation of the illegality implicit in such "legal" proceedings to appear in the Soviet press, Izvestia traces it to its source:

'Public Opinion' And the Judge

"This is the pressure of the surrounding atmosphere, which expresses itself in many ways, noticeably and at the same time intangibly, creating around the judge and in his public life an atmosphere that tries to influence masterfully the outcome of his work on a particular case or a number of cases, under the guise of 'public opinion,' the judge is made to listen to the voice of 'public passions.' To follow this voice in a court case is always dangerous and often unworthy. A judge should stand above this in carrying out his lofty task, which is based not on temporary and transient impressions, but on the eternal and immutable principles of justice."

It matters little that this was not Izvestia's own comment, but the view of a Russian lawyer, who before the revolution was fighting against harassed officials to establish the independence of the judiciary, for Izvestia's own article was a blow in the same case though against a different set of officials. The very fact of the expression of such views in the Soviet press, unthinkable only a few years ago, means that the struggle is already half won.

The Journalist MPs Suffer Divided Loyalties

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA — Any newsman who plies his trade in the precincts of Parliament eventually becomes aware that a good many of the MPs he is writing about are doing the same thing themselves.

They tend to be more gentle, forbearing, sympathetic and complimentary in their comments than the professional chronicler of their doings and misdoings.

Their moonlighting in journalism usually takes the form of a column, with photo and byline, in their local Weekly Bugle & Echo. It will be headed "Report from Parliament Hill," or "Your MP reports," or some similarly catchy title that the MP's wife thought up.

It pays little if any money, but at $18,000 a year out of the public purse plus an easy tax ride and other perquisites they hardly need union scale. Enough that they're getting their picture and opinions regularly before the voters back home, and storing up good will with the editor, who just loves live material he doesn't have to pay for.

You've seen those promotional giveaways for "three box tops or reasonable facsimile thereof." Well, with all real power in Parliament concentrated in the hands of the cabinet, and with back bench MPs having little more than a residual right to advise and warn, a backbencher's solid parliamentary achievements are rarely worth much space in the newspapers.

However, with a weekly signed column in the Bugle & Echo he can provide the home folks with a "reasonable facsimile thereof."

Now, I'm not saying an MP shouldn't do this. Weekly newspaper editors leave national news pretty much to the dailies, and weekly readers are likely to be less well informed on national affairs than city folks. If the MP's column is honestly written, it fills a void. But equally importantly, the chore of writing a regular column requires mental effort. It makes the writer think out the matters with which he's dealing. And this will make him a better MP.

Occasionally a writer of professional competence emerges from the ranks of these journalistic amateurs, and finds a whole new profession opening to him.

One such declined to stand for re-election last fall, and instead became a member of the Parliamentary Press Gallery. He now comments on national affairs with the authority of a person who for eight years took part in them.

Another reversed the process. Formerly editor of a large Montreal daily, he successfully ran for Parliament on Nov. 8 and now writes a column that is refreshing in its discernment. He brings the professional journalist's powers of observation and writing to bear on national affairs from a novel position within the Liberal caucus. And because all is new to him, he sees at times with a clarity of vision surpassing that of veteran reporters whose very familiarity with their field tends to obfuscate their vision.

However, politicians who are part-time journalists, or vice versa, suffer from divided loyalty. Journalism and politics are mutually incompatible professions, and he who tries to practise both simultaneously will encounter circumstances in which journalistic integrity will compromise his political interests, or in which politics require him to betray his readers.

One can only hope that the editors of the Bugles & Echoes are vigilant.

Some year in the not very distant future, I expect we'll add a new statutory holiday to our national list. It should come on or about February 15, and I hope we will call it Flag Day.

When it does materialize, part of the credit will go to a Victoria school that jumped the gun on the rest of the country, and added something new to our national scene.

Its seven-girl student committee decided, first, that we should set aside a day for flag observance in Canada, and second, that they weren't going to wait for the slow-poke processes of Ottawa. Then they declared their own flag day at Mount View secondary.

They couldn't, of course, decree a holiday for the occasion. But on Monday with the approval of principal and teachers, they called a special afternoon assembly in Mount View's big, chilly gymnasium. Their audience was a student body of over 500. The school band and the school choir turned out, and two guest speakers were bidden to attend. One of these was radioman Dick Collidge, who spoke well; the other, me.

In that second choice was a fine, if perhaps unconscious irony. As some of you may recall, I was until a little over a year ago, a pretty dour Red Ensign man.

Still, once the fact was accomplished, I made my peace with the new flag, and now accept it with proper Canadian casualness.

To their credit, these young people are not casual. The red maple leaf on its Canadian pale argent commands in very many of them a feeling warmer than mere respect.

I fear, in fact, that if you wish to find a sense of Canadian nationhood, you had best go to the young for it. They are not cumbered with old bitternesses, and they see no bars to unity.

I had never been to a school assembly, and was nervous about the whole business when I drove out to Mount View on Carey Road.

Like most of Victoria's high schools, this one is no youngster. It sits with a utilitarian, slightly weathered air above a playing field green with earliest spring. Its flag pole, which could use a lick of paint, rises from daisy-peppered grass near the main entrance. When I looked that way, the flag was blowing out splendidly in Monday's brisk breeze.

In the general office, several girls of the school committee were sitting in a row. They looked prim, solemn, and a trifle scared. The others came in one by one from last-minute errands, and while we waited for the students to transfer from classes to gym, they arranged the order of procession.

Then, seconds short of 2:15, we formed what the English call a crocodile, and wound off to the assembly.

The bleachers at the far side of the gym were packed top to bottom when we arrived.

A touch of spring had intruded even here. Some of the boys wore sport shirts without jackets. Here and there, a skirt made a splash of color.

The big, stark room was full of sunshine. It gleamed on the band brasses, and centred on a table decked for what, to the best of my knowledge, was Canada's first flag day ceremony. On the table was a big silver bowl of daffodils coaxed from the bud, and pussy willows hunted out by a squad of boys.

On either side of the table was a bright new flag.

To a school at attention, choir and band combined in "O Canada." The choristers sang first in English, then repeated the anthem in French.

They sang it well, too, in the very accent of French Canada. I wish their opposite numbers in Trois Rivières or Quebec City could have heard them.

I trust there will be other flag days, and who knows but what the next will be observed officially, in all 11 provinces. Meanwhile, in spite of Canada's troubles, she does seem to be raising some likely colts in her pastures.

MRS. HARPER
... we feel sad.

Spoilers Sought By Police

Three acts of vandalism and an attempt at arson were reported by police today.

The arson attempt was discovered Monday during a police investigation of a fire alarm Sunday night at Schofield Roller Rink, 114 Niagara.

Police found vandals had doused a pile of wood at the rear of the building with fuel oil then ignited it.

An alarm was sounded by an unknown person from a nearby pay phone.

By the time fire trucks arrived the fire had burned itself out.

It was the third case of vandalism reported by the roller rink in two weeks. Twice before vandals had thrown fuel oil on a door and set fire to it.

Destroyed Monday night was a quantity of orchids in Government House greenhouse.

Damage to the flowers, estimated at $100 and garden floodlights were also damaged to the extent of $50.

A vacant house at 420 Hillside also was reported damaged.

Police said youths kicked in a door, pulled out the kitchen sink, stood the bath tub on end and damaged the telephone.

Zoning Changes Record Saanich Building Boom

Public hearings will be held next month into five rezoning applications in Saanich.

The five applications seek:

- Three-storey apartment on Richmond Road between Watson and Lansdowne;

- Low-rental housing for senior citizens, northwest corner of Totmie and Linwood;

- Warehouse on the south side of Cadillac at Douglas;

- Kindergarten on the west side of Shelbourne between Derby and Knight;

- Office and retail store, southeast corner of Oak and Saanich Road.

The Advisory Planning Commission recommended approval of all the applications except the warehouse on Cadillac because it is a residential area.

Gas Siphoner Remanded For Sentence

A youth who siphoned gasoline from a parked car was remanded to March 2 for sentence in central court today.

Francis Paul Harrison, 19, of 2361 Cranmore, pleaded guilty to theft under $50.

Court was told he and another youth, a juvenile, took about 2.5 gallons of gas from a car parked at 15 Beach Drive, Feb. 15.

Police stopped the pair when they were on their way to the home to investigate the theft, court was told.

U.S. Income Tax Assistance Offered

A representative of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service will be in Victoria Friday to help local residents who must file U.S. income tax returns.

Mrs. Irene Witschatter will be available for consultation at the Empress Hotel. Appointments may be made in advance by calling EV 4-8111.

Free Food Stall Closing Its Doors to Needy March 19

By JIM HUME
There are 160 families in the Greater Victoria area which could be going hungry after March 19.

That's the day the famous surplus food stall operated by Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Harper, 5695 Patricia Bay Highway, closes its doors for the first time in 17 years.

The stall, which over the years has fed and clothed the hungry and the poor, was started 17 years ago by Barbara Green, opening for two months each summer to handle surplus garden crops and distribute them to less fortunate people.

For the past 13 years, under the firm but kind hand of Mrs. Harper, it has been a year-round operation.

"We feel very sad about giving up the operation of the stall," Mrs. Harper said this morning. "But the doctors have advised my husband and myself to take things a little easier."

Mrs. Harper will be 77 this year.

A Successor Needed

There is a chance that the food stall will remain open if the community can produce another woman with Mrs. Harper's ability and love for fellow human beings.

"A group of men from a service club have offered to take the operation over," Mrs. Harper said. "But while their effort is appreciated I really think it's a woman's job. It is certainly a full-time job and not one which can be handled while a man is doing his regular job."

If a volunteer can be found to take Mrs. Harper's spot she will have to be prepared to work long hours for no other reward than the appreciation of the people she helps.

Mrs. Harper, usually a calm woman, bridled a little when she spoke of a recent radio report which stated that the stall could be organized and operated with three hours work a day.

"That's nonsense," she said. "Utter nonsense. The woman taking over would have to be on hand all day—or her husband would—to take telephone calls from people wishing to send food in. The calls come in at all times of the day and night and they have to be answered."

More than a phone answering service is required. Last Saturday the Harpers received three tons of potatoes and 2,000 loaves of bread for distribution.

"You have to arrange for them to be picked up," said Mrs. Harper. "You have to be on hand to see that they are sorted properly and then you have to arrange for distribution."

Welfare Council Names New Representative

Appointment of Garth Homer as executive director of the Community Welfare Council of Greater Victoria was announced today.

Mr. Homer, at present serving as associate director of the Family Service Agency of Greater Vancouver, will replace Jack Anguish, who left recently to take an administrative position with the Community Chest in London, Ont.

Married, with two children, Mr. Homer received his MSW degree from UBC in 1956 and has had extensive experience in welfare work over the past 15 years in Saskatchewan, Ottawa and Vancouver. He and his family will move to Victoria when he takes over direction of the Welfare Council's work in May.

Police said he was "smashing at a bathroom door" to get at a person inside.

When placed in the police vehicle he also attempted to kick out the windows.

Month in Jail

Joseph Justin Provost, no fixed address, was sentenced in central court today to a month in jail.

He pleaded guilty to vagrancy at a hearing Monday. Provost was arrested Saturday morning in a downtown cafe.

Police estimated damage to his car at $1,750.

"They take turns each month to pick up the food and clothing donated," she said. "They have been a great help and have done a tremendous amount to keep the stall operating on a monthly basis."

There were others, too. Not so prominent as the principles in the venture but each playing a key part.

"It would be impossible to mention everyone," Mrs. Harper said. "The service clubs, wholesalers and the very many individuals who have contributed to our success. We would however like to mention the children who have given us so many cans of food at different times through their various organizations."

Small Beginning

When the food stall first went into operation 17 years ago it took 20 families under its wing. Within a year it had 75 families to feed and none went hungry.

In its peak year 300 families each with an average of three children called every month at the food stall with a chit from the welfare department which stated that they were in need of aid.

Today 160 families are on the list. And still none go hungry.

Many of them are new families in the district not yet entitled to welfare," Mrs. Harper said. "The food stall carried them over that lean period."

Many others received welfare or social assistance but still needed extra aid.

Other Harpers?

On March 19 the helping hand will be withdrawn—unless the community can produce another Mr. and Mrs. Harper capable of distributing between $2,500 and $3,000 of surplus food each month to those without the money to provide for themselves.

Mrs. Harper and her husband, due for a well-earned genuine retirement and rest, are standing by ready to guide and help the volunteer.

But remember the requirements: organizational ability, long hours, little reward other than satisfaction, and love for your fellow man.

Mrs. Harper, like the Apostle Paul, rates the last as most important.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Pamper Aching Feet With Leather Treat

By Penny Saver

Feet are most sensitive extremities. I find that if my feet are tired or aching, it affects my whole body. What I do is pamper them in a soothing hot foot-bath, then encase them in a soft, warm slipper. Soon the weariness disappears, and I am ready to perhaps take the dog for a walk. That is an absurd thought when aching feet stand in the way, but a few minutes in the soft folds of a slipper do wonders to revive the normal feeling.

Attractive foot-wear that serves my purpose more than adequately are Canadian-made moccasins. One style is a comfortable buy for $3.65. There is a foam-rubber sole inside which makes them very soft and cozy items to wear.

This style is the slip-on type, made of creamy-white leather. A darker shade of leather is used as a fringe. Bead-work in blue and red is a colorful feature on the front of these.

Another slip-on moccasin sells for $9.50. This is made of suede leather with seal fur on top. The interior is furry and there's a built-in leather heel. These are also Canadian-made, and have decorative bead-work designs along the side of the shoe. The beaded patterns depict the mountains, and phases of the Indians' life such as their houses, religion, natural forces and other phenomena.

Squaw boots are another big item in this shop. One style has a flap of leather around the ankle, which conceals a cord used as a tie. The pieces are stitched with sturdy nylon thread. These are priced at $7.95.

Another squaw boot is fashioned along the same lines but has no leather flap. These fasten by means of a metal button, the size of a 'quarter', just below the ankle. The price of these is $8.95 the pair.

Men's moccasins made of elk leather are available in the slip-on style. The leather is deep brown, with burnt-on designs. Stitching is done with the same strands of nylon threads. With the double sole, these sell for $9.95, and in the single sole, $8.95.

Pamper your feet with these leather delights. Call Penny at 382-3131. She'll tell you where to shop.

Our Emotions Affect Us

I feel sure that we have only an inkling of the terrific impact our emotions have on us. We know of course that fear can make our knees weak, our scalp crawl and our face pale. We know that anger can make our face red, that nervousness can cause us to perspire profusely, and that worry can make us break out in a rash.

With such outward signs we have every right to think that lots more is going on inside us about which we do not know. Yet in thinking of health and remaining youthful we too often fail to discipline our attitudes. It seems to me that this may be just as important as good nutrition and exercise.

Life would indeed be dull without emotions and it would be impossible for us to live in a state of complete bliss unless we were idiots of the happier kind. In fact we wouldn't wish to live like that because life isn't like that. It has its ups and downs, its sunshine and its shadows, its hills and its valleys, its rewards and its disappointments. Unless we experience both, we are not truly living.

However, I sometimes think that we forget that when we worry or when we are afraid we worry and are afraid all over. Our hair is afraid. So are our heart, liver, stomach, glands and lungs. The whole chemistry of our body changes and its smooth miraculous working is upset.

Just the opposite happens when we are joyously happy. We are that way all over. Every cell seems electrified and we can feel life and happiness simply springing from us.

We are all aware of the effect our emotions have on happiness, but it seems wise also to remember what effect they have on our health and appearance. The problem may have been solved or perhaps never happened as you thought it would but you may be left with a ulcer or bags under your eyes and may have laid the foundation for chronic disease.

Give Tea for Blind

Arrangements of carnations centred guests' tables at a party given by the Women's Auxiliary to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind recently in the CNIB centre. A large bowl of red and white carnations centred the refreshment table. The flowers were arranged and donated by Mrs. S. Belthier.

Toe-tapping music was played by the Hawkins' musical ensemble, followed by a community sing-song.

The tea was convened by Mrs. D. N. Macmillan, President. Mrs. G. H. Jones welcomed guests.

Carnations were presented to all guests. Mrs. S. Le Vack received a special bouquet for her work assembling blind crafts for shipment overseas.

If you want to feel young and spirited, make this divine ensemble by Biki of Milan. The neckline is cut square both front and back. This contrasting high-waisted bodice has an inset contrasting band, accentuating the slim line of the skirt. The short cover-up bolero which is sleeveless and is quite simple, the only detail being the contrasting belt which slips through as opening at the side seams with a soft bow of matching contrast at centre front. Have fun putting different colors together in gay combinations. Fabric suggestions are linen, shantung, faille, jersey, lightweight woolsens and cottons. Spadea's exclusive ready-to-wear sizes produce a better fit. See chart for size best for you.

SEW SIMPLE WITH Eunice Farmer

COWL NECKLINE DRAPES WELL WITH UNDERLINING

Dear Eunice Farmer: I am making a blouse with a cowl neckline. This is made of lightweight silk and is an overblouse rather than a tuck-in blouse. I remember that you suggest underlining. How will this affect the soft cowl neckline?

Mrs. W. W. H.

Dear Mrs. W. W. H.: A garment with a cowl neckline usually is cut on the bias in order to achieve that soft draped look. You will cut the underlining exactly the same (bias). It will drape just as beautifully, in fact the extra weight of the two layers will give it more body and it should be even more attractive.

KNIT NOTES

Is there any way to make a cardigan out of a slipover? I have found a beautiful silk print that matches an old sweater perfectly. I would like to make a jacket-type sweater to go over a dress. I have seen these ready-made.

Mrs. V. G.

Dear Mrs. V. G.: This isn't too difficult—and it is an excellent way to use your old sweaters. Often they are as good as new, but just don't go with anything.

1. Baste a piece of lightweight firm interfacing on the wrong side of the sweater from neck to lower edge at the centre front.

2. Machine stitch two rows of stitching about 1/2-inch apart. I would suggest using a small stitch and it wouldn't be a bad idea to stitch each line twice. Be sure your sweater doesn't stretch out of shape. It may be necessary to place a piece of tissue paper over the sweater and stitch through the paper.

3. Carefully cut the sweater between the two rows of stitching. The interfacing will help keep the edges from

When Skin Sags on Face and Neck

Even skin that sags and is no longer smooth, could be made firm and much younger-looking. That "older look" usually appears first around the throat, but is comparatively easy to treat by very simple means that require no skill at all. Get 2nd Debut with CEF 400 or CEF 1200. In double strength, from your drug or dept. store and apply it gently to your throat and face each night before retiring. After just a few days you will notice your skin becoming firmer again and smoother. That is because the 2nd Debut has revitalized your skin with a new supply of water from the surface clear into the inner skin.

DEAR ABBY...

A Rose by Any Other...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: If a man wants to call his wife his "OLD LADY," what's wrong with that?

My husband has always called me his "OLD LADY" and I'm not even thirty years old yet. What's more, I call him my "OLD MAN," and he doesn't mind a bit. We have four adorable children, and you will find more love and respect in our home than in many other homes where you hear the husbands and wives calling each other, "DARLING DEAREST," and "SWEETHEART." What's in the name?

MY OLD MAN'S OLD LADY

DEAR ABBY: When Seymour and I were first married, a registered package was delivered to our door. He had to sign for it. Then he said to the delivery-man, "It's not for me, it's for MY OLD LADY."

When he handed me the package I refused to accept it. He asked me why, and I said, "Because if it's for your OLD LADY you'd better take it to your mother's house next time you go there." That was the last time he ever called me his OLD LADY.

DEAR ABBY: Please reassure your correspondent "OFFENDED" that there is absolutely nothing disrespectful about the term "My Old Lady." To the British Cockney, this is about as endearing a term as can be applied to a wife. And frankly,

I think it has a warm loving sound.

DEAR ABBY: The man who referred to his wife as his "old lady" might have done so affectionately. When my husband calls me "Weasel, Dingbat and Picklepudding" it's a sign that he is feeling tender toward me. But when he calls me "MARRY FRANCES"—then I know I'm in trouble.

WEASEL

DEAR ABBY: The letter about calling a young woman "My Old Lady" reminded me of a scene I don't think I will ever forget. I couldn't have been more than 10 years old when I stood outside a neighbor kid's window yelling for him to come out and play baseball. He stuck his head out of a downstairs window and yelled back at me, "MY OLD LADY SAYS I GOTTA PRACTICE PIANO FOR AN HOUR FIRST!"

Just then his mother's head appeared in an open window directly above him. She let loose with a pall of water all over this kid's head, and shouted down, "YOUR OLD LADY IS STILL YOUNG ENOUGH TO GIVE YOU A BATH!"

I don't remember ever hearing that kid call his mother his OLD LADY after that.

FROM B.C.

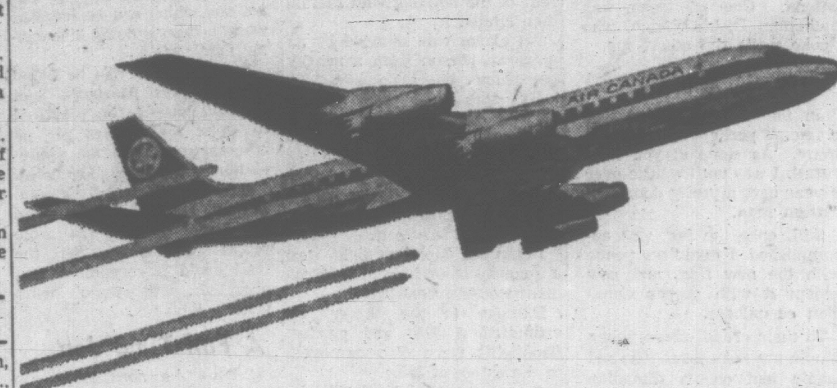

DEAR ABBY: One should be complimented, not offended when referred to as "THE OLD LADY" or "THE OLD MAN."

The reason: Every ground unit commander from company to division, and every commanding officer on naval ships, regardless of the size of the ship or the age of the man, is respectfully called "THE OLD MAN." Therefore, the gentleman who called his wife "THE OLD LADY" was not, in my opinion, being disrespectful. He was plainly indicating that his wife was the boss. When I was thirty years old I was...

"THE OLD MAN"

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I got a chuckle out of that letter from the woman who was offended at hearing a man refer to his wife as his "old lady." My husband has never in all the 39 years we have been married called me anything but that. When we were married, I was 19 and he was 44. Today I am 58 and he is 83, and I am still his "old lady." I won't say we haven't had our little spats, but it was never over anything so silly as what we called each other.

For Talks

MOSCOW (Reuters)—British Prime Minister Wilson appealed to Russian leaders today to help get Viet Nam talks started immediately and without preconditions.

"We ask you to talk with us so those concerned can sit round a table now, while there is time and without preconditions," he said at a Kremlin lunch.

Russia's top leaders, including Communist leader Leonid Brezhnev and Premier Kosygin, listened.

On nuclear weapons for West Germany, Wilson promised them:

"No government of which I am ever the head in our country will ever agree to a German finger being on the nuclear trigger."

Wilson spoke soon after a discussion of nearly two hours with Kosygin.

Informed sources said the meeting—the first since the British prime minister arrived here Monday for a four-day visit—showed no change in the Soviet position on Viet Nam.

In his luncheon speech, Wilson said he and Kosygin agreed the Viet Nam problem: defied solution by military means.

"There must be a political solution in the interests of the people of Viet Nam... whose voice must be heard," he said, according to British officials.

The comment raised speculation whether Wilson was urging that the Viet Cong should be heard at an eventual peace conference.

SUGGESTS FRANK TALKS

Wilson pleaded for frank talk in strong language about differences between Britain and Russia.

"We have a duty to identify those issues where we do not agree and an even greater responsibility to try to identify those areas where we can agree."

He said that on the Viet Nam issue both sides agreed the war was tragic, and that every day it brought unnecessary suffering from people of a country "from whom peace has been a stranger for many years."

Both agreed there was great danger of the spread of war in Asia, particularly while the fighting continued to cast a cloud on East-West relations.

Wilson said the problem of nuclear non-proliferation was

No Sign
Of Life
Near Dory

HALIFAX (CP)—An overturned dory was sighted today about 10 miles northwest of the last known position of the Newfoundland trawler Blue Mist, the air-sea rescue centre here reported.

The trawler carried 13 men. An air force Neptune was sent to circle the boat until the fisheries department ship Cape Freels and the fishing trawler Grand Monarch could reach the scene.

No sign of life near the dory was reported from the air. The boat was found about 50 miles off Newfoundland's southwest coast.

Planes and ships were pushed into the search for the missing vessel today, but bitter cold, high seas and freezing spray led to fears that the ship might have met the same fate as another trawler, the Blue Wave, on Feb. 9, 1959. All 16 men aboard lost their lives when the Blue Wave ice and sank.

For Viet Support

NEW DELHI (AP)—India's prime minister, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, disclosed in Parliament today that Vice-President Hubert Humphrey asked her government to support U.S. policy in Viet Nam, but she declined because of India's non-aligned position.

Mrs. Gandhi said she told Humphrey, who visited New Delhi last week, that India's view of the Viet Nam war is based on its position as a non-aligned country and as chairman of the International Control Commission for Viet Nam.

Canada and Poland are the other ICC members.

Humphrey "appreciated" India's attitude and expressed the hope this country would "do everything possible to facilitate a peaceful solution of the problem," Mrs. Gandhi said.

Members of Parliament had asked if Humphrey's announcement of a new $100,000,000 loan to India was tied to any secret assurances from Mrs. Gandhi on India's foreign or domestic policy.

"We will not be forced into taking any position not consistent with our national interest," Mrs. Gandhi said.

SEA LORD RESIGNS

U.K. Dropping
Fleet Air Arm

LONDON (UPI)—Britain announced today it will cut back the role of the navy's aircraft carriers and build its air forces around American F-4A supersonic bombers in a controversial decision that caused the resignation of both the civilian and military chiefs of the Royal Navy.

The fleet air arm—the navy's carrier-based force—will be phased out in the 1970s along with certain foreign bases in favor of land-based aircraft capable of rapid, long-distance operations.

The decision was announced by the Labor government in a special position paper on defense presented today in Parliament.

The white paper also said Britain regarded continuation of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization as vital to Europe's defense.

The paper said there will be no wholesale British retreats from global commitments despite the cut-back in defense expenditures.

But the decision, prompted by both strategic and monetary considerations, rocked the top echelons of the navy. The First Sea Lord, Admiral Sir David Luce, today joined his civilian chief, Navy Minister Christopher Mayhew, in announcing his resignation in protest to the action.

Mayhew quit on Saturday, saying the new defense budget was "dangerously mistaken."

Aviation Circles Also Unhappy

Luce timed his resignation with the actual announcement of the carrier-scuttling budget.

Aviation circles also were unhappy about the planned purchase of 50 of the "swing-wing" American bombers at the expense of a junked British design, the TSR2, and possible British-French combinations.

Britain pledged to maintain her commitments in the Far East and South Asia but will cut her forces in the Mediterranean and pull out of Aden when South Arabia becomes independent in 1968.

Forces will be kept at the existing level in Germany "provided some means is found for meeting the foreign exchange costs of these forces."

In an effort to halt the spread of nuclear weapons, Britain "aims to internationalize her nuclear strategic forces to discourage further proliferation and to strengthen the North Atlantic Alliance," it said.

The defence proposals designed to cut Britain's defense spending to $5.6 billion by 1970, are expected to spark the biggest political-service row since the government assumed power 16 months ago.

The British have been carrying a heavy defence burden defence facilities in an independent country against its wishes.

"In order to ease the strain from which our forces have suffered for so long and to improve the ratio of home to overseas service, it will be necessary to keep a higher proportion than now in the United Kingdom and to rely on quick reinforcement by air," the white paper said.

The white paper, soon to be followed by an expected bitter debate from Conservative opposition, said Britain will continue to urge the United Nations to assume a greater role in international peace-keeping.

Statement Alleged

OTTAWA (CP)—Pierre Lamontagne testified today Raymond Denis indicated that he (Denis) was "going to get something out of" efforts to free narcotics smuggler Lucien Rivard on bail in 1964.

The 30-year-old Montreal lawyer also swore that Denis, a former aide to the federal immigration minister, told him there were four persons behind an offer of $20,000 if Mr. Lamontagne would drop opposition to bail for Rivard.

Mr. Lamontagne said he was able to learn only one of the names, that of a person referred to only as Gellinas.

Crown Attorney John Cassels asked Mr. Lamontagne to clarify an earlier reply about someone other than Mr. Lamontagne being offered money.

Two men arrested Monday in Vancouver in connection with a $19,342 robbery of a branch of the Bank of Montreal here appeared in central court in Victoria today.

Charged with the Friday night armed robbery of the Richmond and Fort branch are William Braumberger, 45 and Henry Gable, 46.

Both are from Vancouver. They were arrested by city detectives Lorne Johnson and Jack Mason.

The city officers and members of Vancouver City police arrested the pair in Braumberger's home in the Grandview district of Vancouver.

Both suspects were remanded to March 1.

Gable asked a week-long remand to consider his election on the charge of armed robbery. Braumberger had his election options explained three times before he chose trial by judge and jury.

Korean Troops Sought

SEOUL (UPI)—Roving Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, winding up his nine-nation Asian tour, arrived here today, reportedly to work out an agreement for sending more Korean troops to Viet Nam. Korea already has 20,000 men fighting in the war.

Humphrey, accompanied by 14 aides and diplomatic trouble-shooter W. Averell Harriman, was met at Kimpo International Airport by Korean Premier Chung Il-Kwon and other ranking government officials. American Ambassador Winthrop G. Brown was also on hand to greet the party.

According to reliable sources, Humphrey's visit was expected to bring about an "agreement in principle" on terms of a proposal to send more Korean troops to Viet Nam. Once agreement is reached, the sources said, details could be prepared through normal diplomatic channels in Seoul and Washington.

Viet Cong Stronghold Captured

SAIGON (Reuters)—United States troops for the first time today swept into a Viet Cong mountain stronghold in Central Highlands of South Viet Nam where guerrillas had held out for four days against air and ground bombardment.

As a massive onslaught from heavy B-52 bombers died away, men of the United States 1st Air Cavalry Division moved in on foot and by helicopter.

An American military spokesman today reported they met no opposition. They found 38 bodies, casualties of the bombardment.

For four days the Viet Cong defended their stronghold against the air cavalry push, despite losing hundreds of men, the spokesman said.

In coastal Binh Thuan Province 200 miles further south today the Viet Cong lost 56 dead in an attack on a government district headquarters, a South Vietnamese military spokesman reported.

Local militiamen fought off the attack, the spokesman said.

AT ITALIAN FUNERALS

Hire Orphans for Prayers

TURIN, Italy (Reuters)—A judge made a bitter public protest today against the Italian habit of hiring children from orphanages to pray at funerals.

Emilio Germano, president of the Turin civil tribunal, said it was a painful spectacle which should be forbidden.

Writing in the influential daily newspaper La Stampa, the judge denounced as unjust and inhuman the spectacle of a double file of orphans, "long or short in relation to the wealth of the departed one, sent to follow funeral processions."

DIRECTORS CHASTIZED

He also chastized the insensibility of orphanage directors and the "exhibitionist mania" of bereaved families who were not content with a simple funeral but wanted "processions of poor babies forced to recite dreary dirges which they did not understand."

Germano said a far more painful practice existed in parts of south Italy where orphans were hired to pray at night-long wakes over dead bodies.

He denounced the practice of sending children out to beg on church steps. In some orphanages children were forced to write begging letters accompanied by their names, photographs and biographical details he said.
